U.N. May Act In Balkans

Delegates Hint At Yugoslavia Support

LAKE SUCCESS, N.Y. (UP)—The United Nations' Security Council will move to help Yugoslavia with lightning speed if her Balkan neighbors attack her, U.N. delegates said today.

Yugoslavia, menaced by the massing of Cominform troops on its borders, will seek action by the Security Council at the first act of aggression, informed sources indicated.

Ducharme Executed At Oakalla Prison

VANCOUVER (CP)—Fred (Red) Ducharme, millworker, was hanged at dawn today for murdering a woman he picked up on a rain-swept November night.

His face chalk-white, but his step firm, the 37-year-old Ducharme dropped through an abandoned elevator shaft at Oakalla Prison farm at 6:05 and was pronounced dead 13 minutes later.

There was no last-minute confession—at least to prison officials, nor was there a final plea of innocence, and the trip from the barren death cell to death on the gallows took less than two minutes.

Ducharme, whose tangled testimony resulted in one of the longest trials in Vancouver criminal court history, was convicted of the slaying of Blanche Ferne Fisher on Nov. 8 last.

A priest of the red-headed man's Roman Catholic faith—Father Gerald Hayes—spent the entire night comforting Ducharme from a kitchen chair in the cell.

Ducharme didn't sleep, he said, but "stood up very well all night long."

He would not divulge his conversation with the millworker, who only Thursday was refused permission to appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada.

His appeal from the conviction had been heard in Victoria by the B.C. Court of Appeal, which unanimously dismissed it.

Dawson Creek To Use Gas

EDMONTON (CP)—The Alberta government today authorized export of natural gas from the Pouce Coupe gas field in northern Alberta through a 17-mile pipeline to Dawson Creek in northern British Columbia.

A license for construction of the line and export of the gas—controlled by Alberta under legislation passed last year—has been granted to West Coast Transmission Company.

The decision followed a hearing before the Alberta Petroleum and Natural Gas Conservation Board last month.

'Miracle Mile' Voted By Council

EDMONTON (BUP)—City council here gave the "miracle mile" proposal of U.S. financial interests final approval Thursday night.

The plan to build a $28,000,000 shopping and entertainment centre in the heart of the city will be taken up at a public hearing of the public utility commissioners July 31 for approval.

If there should be considerable opposition, the board could order a plebiscite.

Seven Hurt In Two-Car Crash Near Duncan

Women Suffer From Flying Glass Cuts

Four Victoria men, two of their wives and a Westholme man, were injured in a two-car crash on the Island Highway near Duncan at 10 Thursday night. Injuries were not of a critical nature.

In Chemainus Hospital today in good condition are Mrs. William Fraser and Mrs. Bert McAdam, wives of two of the local men. They received multiple lacerations of the face, hands and arms.

Also treated at the hospital but not admitted were: William Fisher, Macaulay Point, Esquimalt, the driver, and Cyril Purcell and Carl Nickerson, soldiers of Work Point Barracks, suffering from shock, and Bert McAdam, Macaulay Point, arm injuries.

Minor bruises were sustained by Jack Sweeney, Westholme Store, driver of the other vehicle, a light delivery truck. He was not taken to hospital.

Constable Thomas Kelly of the E.C. Police estimated that about $1,000 damage was done to vehicles, the Fisher car being the most heavily damaged.

The six taken to the hospital were in the five-passenger coupe driven by Fisher. Collision took place on a slight curve about 100 yards north of the C.P.R. crossing at the Westholme Indian Reserve.

The women, both in the front seat, suffered most of their injuries from flying glass. The front left wheels of the cars came together in the crash.

Atom Bomb If W. Europe Attacked

LONDON (UP)—A former British foreign office official said yesterday that the United States should use the atom bomb against the Russians if they cross the Elbe River.

Lord Vansittart, former permanent under-secretary at the foreign office, told the Slough Chamber of Commerce there was no justification for using the bomb against the North Korean Communists at present.

He said it would be held in reserve as a "last resort" in Korea.

"On the other hand," he said, "if the Russians were to cross the Elbe and invade western Europe, I don't think we should hesitate to use it."

Henrys Collide

SANFORD, Fla. (UP)—Two 1923 model T Fords collided at an intersection Thursday night. One was driven by Henry McLaughlin, 51, the other by Henry Bush, 83.

'Last Chance' To Outlaw H-Bomb, Save Countries

WASHINGTON (UP)—The congressional atomic energy committee said today the world may be facing its last chance to outlaw hydrogen weapons that could destroy a city the size of Chicago in a single fiery burst.

In the most comprehensive report yet issued on the H-bomb, the committee hinted broadly at official confidence that the dreaded weapon will be produced.

The report outlined the awesome possibilities of the weapon and warned that agreement on international controls could be far more difficult to achieve once it becomes a reality.

When that day comes, it said,

U.S. Watching Moscow Talks

WASHINGTON (UP)—Secretary of State Dean Acheson kept a close eye today on the efforts of Great Britain and India to negotiate an end to the Korean war.

He and other State Department officials had nothing to say officially about the current Anglo-Soviet talks in Moscow.

Nor would they discuss India's note to the United States and Russia in which it expressed a desire to see the current crisis settled within the United Nations.

British ambassador Sir Oliver Franks brought Acheson up to date on Britain's peace campaign. He declined to tell reporters details of his conversation.

"I had a short conversation with the Secretary of State Thursday about the Korean situation," he told newsmen. "I haven't anything else to say."

Although U.S. officials were pessimistic about the outcome of the Moscow parleys, they noted press reports clearing Soviet censorship to the effect that Russia might be interested in seeking a peaceful solution to the Korean crisis.

According to these unofficial reports, Russia would demand withdrawal of U.S. troops and a Korean general election as her price for calling off her North Korean puppets. There were no details on how the plan could be made acceptable to the United States or the United Nations.

PROFAGANDA But diplomatic observers here cited three reasons why Russia may be willing to listen to the British pleas for peace. They were:

1. Russian intervention to end the Korean war would give a tremendous boost to the Soviet peace propaganda campaign.

2. Soviet leaders may have miscalculated U.S. firmness against Communist aggression.

A negotiated end to the present battle would give them a chance to escape the consequences of their error.

3. Russian propaganda agencies have insisted the war was started by the South Koreans. Refusal to try to end the conflict would hardly be consistent with these claims.

West Europe Confident Of Korea Victory

U.S. Setbacks Fail To Kill Confidence

LONDON (AP)—Non-Communist Western Europeans reacted with the same phrase today to American setbacks in Korea: "Give them time."

Outside those circles obedient to Moscow, the feeling among both press and public was that despite heavy odds, the United States troops would pull out of the hole.

There were, however, some doubts and some criticisms.

In Norway and Finland, both neighbors of Russia, the man in the street wondered out loud whether the needed reinforcements of men and material would be too little and too late. Some Finns found the state of U.S. preparedness in the Pacific a chilling eye-opener. They were impressed with the apparent military ability of the North Koreans.

Almost the only sharp non-Communist criticism of the U.S. Korean effort came from Rome's moderate, pro-government Il Momento.

"The fact alone that America has to half mobilize to oppose a semibarbarian state, a country that is the last (least powerful) of the Soviet satellites, will mean for America a loss of prestige which a late and painfully secured victory will not be able to regain," it wrote.

Il Momento's Conservative competitor, Il Tempo, which also supports the Christian Democratic government, took another view.

"Don't be impatient. The Communists have enjoyed all the advantages of aggression, including surprise and even using 60-ton Soviet tanks. In the end we shall see MacArthur's army coming back."

The London Daily Express warned that the news from Korea might continue bad for another 90 days, but predicted eventual victory.

Ss. Franconia Still On Rocks

QUEBEC (CP)—Refloating of the 20,000-ton liner Franconia may be a lengthy operation. It appeared today as the big ship lay in the grip of St. Lawrence River rocks on the shore of the Island of Orleans.

The Cunard-Donaldson liner ran on the rocky shore at Pointe au Tauxer Wednesday night shortly after leaving Quebec for Liverpool.

VICTORY PREDICTED

MacArthur Runs Up Flag Sent Him By U.N.

TOKYO (UP)—Gen MacArthur raised the blue and white banner of the United Nations today over his headquarters building.

The flag, bearing olive branches as a symbol of peace, was run up on a special flagpole beside the U.S. flag.

Before the ceremony, MacArthur sent a message to U.N. Secretary-General Trygve Lie through Lie's personal representative that "the end will be victory in Korea."

MacArthur, Supreme U.N. Commander in Korea, had received a smaller U.N. flag from Lie previously, but decided to wait the arrival of a larger flag before raising the symbol of his international command.

"I accept this flag with deep emotion," MacArthur said during the ceremony on the roof of his Daiichi building headquarters in downtown Tokyo.

"It symbolizes one of the greatest efforts man has ever made to free himself. The Far East Command will do its best to uphold this noblest of ideas."

The flag used in the ceremony is the one that flew over the headquarters of the late Count Folke Bernadotte and Dr. Ralph Bunche when they negotiated peace in Palestine.

Its transfer to MacArthur formally marked the first time that U.S. troops have fought under the U.N. flag. The flag has a blue background with a globe outlined in white and circled with white olive branches.

Enemy Forces Being Contained, Liquidated

TOKYO (UP)—Red troops swarmed across Korea's Kum River in a hail of American artillery fire today and engaged U.S. forces in savage fighting.

Late front reports said the enemy forces were being "contained" and liquidated.

A spokesman at advance U.S. headquarters in Korea said there had been no Communist breakthrough of the Kum River line. Although several daylight crossings of the Kum have been attempted by the Reds, he said, there is nothing alarming about the situation.

He denied rumors that the Reds had captured an American airstrip on the south side of the river.

However, an American hospital plane brought back word that Communist advances presumably in the Kum River area seemed about to force the Americans to abandon use of an advance airstrip.

First messages from a front-line command post said two North Korean army groups totaling 500 men had stormed across the Kum near the highway junction of Kongju, 19 miles north-west of Taejon.

Later word was that the two groups totaled 100 men who were being "contained" and wiped out.

The attack was the first against the American Kum River defense line in which the northern invaders reached the south bank in any appreciable numbers.

THREE SORTIES FAIL

At least three times during the night, North Korean patrols tried to swim and wade across the broad, sluggish, shallow stream. U.S. mortar and machine-gun fire virtually liquidated one group. A few Communists from each of two other patrols made the south bank, but were quickly dealt with there by American infantry.

American and North Korean artillery duelled across the Kum all day immediately north of Taejon road from the north, but caused no appreciable damage or casualties.

U.S. fighters and bombers joined the bombardment of the Red lines. In raids Thursday they destroyed or damaged 21 tanks and 103 trucks.

Front reports said American artillery knocked out two Communist tanks and set fire to three villages in the almost continuous bombardment of the enemy-held north bank.

A captured North Korean tank commander was reported to have told intelligence officers that the Communists planned an all-out tank thrust against Taejon.

A spokesman at advanced U.S. headquarters disclosed that a hitherto unreported Red spearhead had outflanked Taejon by driving to a point just north of the west coast port of Kusan, 45 miles southwest of the South Korean provisional capital.

However, the force, described as "small enemy elements," still was on the north bank of the Kum. The Kum empties into the sea at Kusan after looping north around Taejon.

PROGRESS ON FLANK

The main Communist flanking attack still was making progress against South Korean forces holding the central front northeast of Taejon.

Gen. Douglas MacArthur's afternoon communique reported the North Korean 15th and 5th Divisions continued to press on to the south toward Hamchang, 45 miles east northeast of Taejon, and Andong, 30 miles farther east.

The two-storey clapboard dwelling was destroyed in "a matter of minutes," neighbors said.

The seven children who died were trapped in their beds on the second floor. So was the badly-burned survivor, Eva, and another son, Jean Claude, 12.

Jean Claude first noticed the fire. He shouted an alarm and ran downstairs.

His father and mother and 17-year-old Raymond, all sleeping downstairs, managed to get out with him.

Mr. Degagne put a ladder to a second-story window and rescued Eva—but the fire-weakened house crashed to the ground before the rest could be saved.

'No Dunkirk' In Sight For Korean Army

WASHINGTON (BUP)—A military spokesman said today there is "No Dunkirk in Sight" in Korea.

"There is no doubt in the world that we are going to hold these people (Communist invaders), he told newsmen at a 10 a.m. Pentagon briefing.

"There is no question in my mind but that we are going to come out on top of the heap," he said. "We've got the means to handle that show."

He said the Korean operation is a tough and gruelling fight for "the men over there on the grindstone."

"The situation is serious, he said, but there is no catastrophe confronting American and Allied forces.

$12,000 A Day Canada's Navy Cost Off Korea

OTTAWA (BUP)—The navy estimated it would cost more than $84,000 a week to maintain three destroyers in the Korean war zone, but said this was a drop in the bucket compared with their original assignment.

The destroyers Cayuga, Sioux and Athabaskan, now being readied at Pearl Harbor to join the United States task force "Yoke" off Korea, were to have gone to Europe on a five-month training cruise. That would have set the nation's taxpayers back nearly $2,000,000.

It costs roughly $4,000 a day to maintain a destroyer in service. Headquarters spokesmen said this included crewmen's pay, food, clothing, maintenance, and ammunition for practice sessions.

No naval or government official here was prepared to estimate for the record how long it would be before the three vessels returned to their home base at Esquimalt, B.C. They left there a week ago last Wednesday.

7 Children Die As Fire Razes Quebec House

ROUYN, Que. (CP)—Seven children died Thursday night in a fire which destroyed a house at McWatters, eight miles from here.

The victims, children of Mr. and Mrs. Elton Degagne, were Rosa 14, Claudette 9, Carmen 8, Jean Roch 6, Gisele 4, Lucien 3, and Maurice 2.

Mrs. Degagne and her 15-year-old daughter, Eva, were badly burned. Doctors said the girl might not survive.

Cause of the blaze was not learned immediately. The family had been baking bread during the evening.

The two-storey clapboard dwelling was destroyed in "a matter of minutes," neighbors said.

The seven children who died were trapped in their beds on the second floor. So was the badly-burned survivor, Eva, and another son, Jean Claude, 12.

Jean Claude first noticed the fire. He shouted an alarm and ran downstairs.

Lie Requests 52 Nations Join In

No Word From Ottawa As Cabinet Members Away—M.P.'s Must Decide

LAKE SUCCESS (AP)—Secretary-General Trygve Lie urgently appealed today to 52 United Nations members for ground forces and other assistance for the U.N. Korean war effort.

Lie told a press conference the unified command under the United States is in urgent need of additional effective assistance.

He dispatched telegrams to all U.N. countries backing the Security Council action against Communist North Korea, telling them he would be grateful for them to consider the possibility of such assistance, "including combat forces, particularly ground forces."

Lie said these forces should be "effective forces" and not "token."

May Speed Up Conversion Of Warship Here

Speculation that conversion and modernization of the Canadian destroyer Algonquin which has just started at Yarrow's Esquimalt shipyard may be speeded up as a result of the Korean war was voiced unofficially on Victoria's waterfront today.

The fleet-class vessel has been in "mothballs" as part of the reserve fleet and is not now commissioned.

At present, the modernization, which is understood to be similar to that carried on H.M.C.S. Sioux, is proceeding at a normal pace.

The project was scheduled to be carried out before the Korean war as part of an overall plan to keep reserve ships in semi-readiness.

NO INDICATIONS

A navy spokesman at Esquimalt said there had been no indications that work would be speeded up as a result of the Korean war.

At present, there are no destroyers on active service on this coast. The three-ship squadron from Esquimalt is now heading for Korean waters to serve under the U.N. flag.

Provided no order to accelerate the pace of the work is received, the conversion would take about a year. It is reported to be a sizeable contract.

Should Ottawa decide to hasten the work and commission Algonquin for active service, it probably would mean the shipyard would have to hire more men.

As is customary when carrying out naval work, much of which is secret, shipyard officials said they preferred to leave it up to the navy to make any comments.

Penway was on vacation with several Canadian friends. Several others tried to rescue him but he was already dead when they reached him.

WANTS POLICE AS UNIT IN EVENT OF DISASTER

A plan to have Greater Victoria police forces operate as one unit in the event of major disaster is being given consideration here on the suggestion of Mayor Percy George, who was called in when the local Red Cross division recently made plans for setting up a civilian disaster committee here.

The mayor this morning called officers of the four municipal police departments and a provincial police representative to the City Hall to outline the unification plan.

Insp. C. Clark of the B.C. police also attended. The officers were in favor of the proposal. The various police representatives will work as a committee on the question with Chief Blackstock as head.

RED TROOPS CRACK KUM RIVER FRONT

South Korean Government Pulls Out Of Menaced Taejon As Battle Rages Nearby

TOKYO (BUP)—Strong forces of Communist troops disguised in U.S. uniforms crossed the Kum River near Taejon and cracked the line of American defenses along the south bank, U.S. field headquarters announced today (Saturday).

Violent fighting was raging at midnight along the Kum in the Taejon sector, U.S. advanced headquarters in Korea reported.

The North Korean forces poured down out of the hills behind the Kum River valley and struck "in large force" at the American left flank northeast of Taejon.

The break-through foreshadowed another series of withdrawals by the American forces, United Press staff correspondent Rutherford Poole reported from Korean headquarters. He said the Americans were outnumbered four to one.

The South Korean government already had pulled out most of its sections from Taejon, the emergency capital to which it fled from Seoul, and gone on farther south.

Reports from the battlefield at first said the hard-fighting Americans were holding the raiders in check after the Kum River was forced in the face of a point-blank American artillery barrage.

But later dispatches admitted that heavy fighting was in progress on the south bank.

The North Koreans attacked after several days of infiltrating soldiers in civilian clothes under cover of darkness. The Kum was low and sluggish, and could be forced at some places in the sector.

New Blow On Right Likely

It was reported that another Communist stab across the river was expected on the right flank of the Americans to the east of Taejon where the U.S. and South Korean sectors join.

Heavy artillery across the river went on during the night. The field green American uniforms worn by the attacking Communists threw the U.S. defenders off balance and gave the enemy an advantage.

The Korean Communists were fighting guerrilla style. U.S. officers at the front acknowledged the difficulty of dealing with guerrilla infiltration. The Americans were finding it hard to tell friend from foe, and the problem was complicated by the enemy wearing American uniforms.

First Message Was Gloomy

First messages from a front-line command post said two North Korean army groups totaling 500 men had stormed across the Kum near the highway junction of Kongju, 19 miles northwest of Taejon.

Later word was that the two groups totaled 100 men who were being "contained" and wiped out.

The attack was the first against the American Kum River defense line in which the northern invaders reached the south bank in any appreciable numbers.

At least three times during the night, North Korean patrols tried to swim and wade across the broad, sluggish, shallow stream. U.S. mortar and machine-gun fire virtually liquidated one group. A few Communists from each of two other patrols made the south bank, but

A spokesman at advanced U.S. headquarters disclosed that a hitherto unreported Red spearhead had outflanked Taejon by driving to a point just north of the west coast port of Kunsan, 45 miles southwest of the South Korean provisional capital. However, the force, described as "small enemy elements," still was on the north bank of the sea. The Kum empties into the sea at Kunsan after looping north around Taejon.

Summer's Worst Weather Hits From Prairies To Atlantic

By BRITISH UNITED PRESS

A battered, rain-weary nation took stock today after nearly 24 hours of the summer's worst weather.

This is what it found: At least six fishing vessels in distress or missing off the east coast.

Widespread floods on the prairies. Five homes reported damaged by lightning in the Toronto area alone.

And the damage list still was not complete.

U.S. Outlines 'Rock Bottom' Peace Terms

WASHINGTON (UP)—The United States "rock bottom" terms for settling the Korean war are a "cease fire and a return to the 38th parallel," the State Department said today.

Department press officer Lincoln White made the statement in response to questions on this government's attitude toward efforts of Britain and India for peaceful solution of the Korean war with Moscow.

White emphasized that the American position is that any solution of the Korean war must be worked out within the framework of the United Nations resolutions on Korea.

Those resolutions called on North Korea to cease fire and return the Communist troops to the 38th parallel dividing North and South Korea.

Pickets Delay Plane Motors

SYDNEY, Australia (Reuter)—A dockers' union official today stopped the loading of six engines for the Royal Australian Air Force in Japan.

One engine was already in the sling to be loaded on a freighter when the official told the men not to handle them. The engines were taken back to the stores.

Plan Atomic Engine

WASHINGTON (UP)—Senator Brian McMahon, D., Conn., disclosed today that construction will begin next month at Arco, Ida., on the first land-based prototype of an atomic engine to power submarines.

Shots Fired At Invaders Killing One

BELGRADE (AP)—Yugoslavia 'accused' Bulgaria today of sending army patrols across the frontier Thursday in four separate incidents in which shots were exchanged and one Bulgarian soldier killed.

The Yugoslav foreign ministry handed the Bulgarian legation here formal note, charging the four incidents were touched off by Bulgarian efforts to capture Yugoslav guards on Yugoslav territory.

The charge intensified the Balkan cold war of nerves between Marshal Tito's government and the Russian-dominated Cominform which ousted Tito in 1948.

A broadcast recorded by the Belgrade radio said the incidents began early Thursday evening when a Bulgarian soldier crossed the border into Yugoslav territory.

An hour later a group of 15 Bulgarian soldiers, with rifles at the ready, approached the frontier. Yugoslav guards ordered them to halt. One Bulgarian crossed the line, was ordered to drop his arms. He did so. Then he moved about 40 yards inside Yugoslav territory, seized a hidden hand grenade and threw it at a Yugoslav guard.

The Yugoslav patrol shot and killed him "in self-defence," the report said. The explosion caused an exchange of fire between the guards on each side of the border.

Two Terrific Explosions At British Port

LONDON (AP)—Two terrific explosions rocked the naval ammunition centre of Gosport, near the Portsmouth navy yard to night, and fire followed the blasts, a spokesman for the Admiralty announced.

First reports were that the blasts, a quarter of an hour apart, occurred in a lighter from the Bendenham ammunition depot. The blasts were felt 12 miles away. The fire spread to the depot itself.

Fire brigades from several localities were rushed to the scene. Gosport, a city of 50,000, is famous in Britain as a yacht-building centre.

In addition to its light shipyards it contains the Royal Navy food supply centre. Ships of the navy load and unload shells and torpedoes at the Bendenham ammunition centre.

ONE WOMAN'S DAY

By NANCY HODGES

OLDEST IN CANADA

WHILE IN HALIFAX I have fulfilled a promise made to myself when here last October—to browse around St. Paul's (Anglican) Church, the oldest Protestant church in Canada. So after attending the Sunday morning service within its quaint interior, with the box-like pews, I spent an hour delving into its history.

It was established in 1749 under a Royal Foundation—reminders of which are to be seen in the extremely beautiful silver communion vessels presented by the founder, King George III, and in the scarlet cassocks worn by the choir and organist.

QUAINT HATCHMENTS

BUT WHAT interested me the most were the human associations—the many handsome marble funeral hatchments which line its interior walls. They remind the worshipper and idle passerby that beneath the edifice, which was erected by Hon. Edward Cornwallis in 1750, are vaults holding the remains of men illustrious in the annals of British Colonial life.

One of the most ornate intrigued me by its dedication to a collector of customs, its flowering epitaph being in marked contrast to the sentiments expressed about collectors of customs in these days—even dead ones!

CUSTOMS COLLECTOR

HERE IS THE inscription, as I copied its fading letters, etched nearly 150 years ago in white marble:

"Sacred to the Memory of The Honourable Henry Newton, the first Collector of His Majesty's Customs in Nova Scotia and Halifax, which appointment he held for 50 years with Signal honour to himself and advantage to the Public. His father, Herbert Newton, Esquire, held the same office at Annapolis forty years. He was a member of His Majesty's Council for this Province forty-two years and invested with other offices of distinction and trust. Greatly beloved and respected for his many virtues but chiefly for his exemplary Christian character and conduct; consistently sustained through a long life in an age of great laxity and religious indifference. He died universally lamented on the 29th of January, 1802, aged 70 years."

VICTIM OF WEATHER

AN EVEN OLDER marble slab nearby commemorates a distinguished victim of Nova Scotia weather—perhaps of the "unusual" variety—records:

"Here lies the remains of the Right Honourable Lord Charles Greville Montagu, second son to Robert, Duke of Manchester. His Lordship after having served His Majesty with Honour in various Countries and gone through great Fatigues, Fell a sacrifice to Public Zeal through the Inclemency of a severe winter in Nova Scotia, where he was employed to settle a brave Corps of Carolinians whom he had commanded during the late War between Great Britain and Spain. He died much regretted on the 3rd day of February, 1784, aged 45 years."

Apparently the inclemency of Nova Scotia winters was not so hard on all its pioneer notables, judging by the hatchment of the Hon. Sampson Salter Blowers, for 35 years president of His Majesty's Council and Chief Justice of Nova Scotia, who died in 1842, aged 100 years.

'OF A CONSUMPTION'

AN ELABORATE marble monument pays effusive tribute to Amelia Ann, wife of His Excellency Major-General George Strachey Smyth, Lieut.-Governor of New Brunswick, who died June 1, 1817, "of a consumption," aged 32 years. The epitaph reads:

"Vain was an husband's wish, his tenderest care, And many an anxious friend's unceasing prayer To save from death: her soul was early blest And called by Heaven's decree to endless rest. 'Twas useless here in tributary verse Her form, her face, her virtues to rehearse. But fond remembrance ever loves to dwell And to the world in grateful lines to tell Those gifts so rare by gracious Heaven designed To soften care and soothe the troubled mind. Farewell, blest shade! Thy piety and love Will gain a sure reward in realms above."

Two-Funnel Freighter Sets Five 'Firsts' For Coast

A British merchantman, currently in B.C. waters, is on a record-making voyage.

The cargo liner Silverbriar has chalked up five west coast marine "firsts."

She is the first freighter with two funnels ever seen in these parts.

She is the first ship to have a built-in, old-style English pub, complete with half-timbered Elizabethan beams.

With a load of 650 British automobiles, she set a record for the number of vehicles shipped by a single manufacturer on one vessel.

She sailed from Cardiff to Vancouver in 20 days, establishing what is believed to be a record.

Finally she is here to make the first run of a new scheduled service between Canada and India.

SALMON PRICE SET

VANCOUVER (CP)—British Columbia fishermen will get 20 cents a pound for sockeye salmon this year. An agreement between the salmon canners' operating committee and the United Fishermen and Allied Workers Union (T.L.C.) sets salmon prices for the current season and ends more than two months negotiations.

U.S. Nurses Heroines, Lifesavers For Wounded Soldiers In Korea

By GENE SYMONDS

SOMEWHERE IN KOREA (UP)—A dozen angels wearing green slacks and lipstick are saving more American lives than they can stop to count. They're the nurses who were brought to Korea a week after the war started and began working around the clock in a forward hospital within a few miles of the front.

Their commanding officer, who refused to give his name because "this is the girls' story," said without the nurses' help there would be "many, many more American dead" from battle wounds.

Island-Berries Prove Fast-Selling Product This Year

Greater Victorians this year appear to be devoting considerable time and attention to the eating and preserving of berries from the local markets.

Vancouver Island berry farmers find their produce being bought up as fast as they can get it to the market. Other large quantities are going direct from the farms to the consumers who buy at the source.

A leading factor in this successful berry-selling year is the Victoria Times classified section which has brought such quick results that many farmers have found their produce bought out after the appearance of only one advertisement.

One producer who experienced these quick results is G. G. Holmes, 3151 Admirals Road, who had his stock cleared out after the appearance of his first advertisement of black currants for sale.

Long-Burning Fire Causes Outbreak

LADYSMITH—A slack pile fire burning on Ladysmith beach for many years finally caught up with Arthur DeFrane.

Fanned by a stiff wind, a smouldering heap of slack threatened to destroy his beach house and boat on the beach, and Mr. DeFrane had to work fast.

He managed to get the boat to safety and he tore down the beachhouse.

line for chow with the officers and enlisted men.

Whenever they get a chance, however, Capt. La Conte said, they put on fresh lipstick "to boost morale."

Improvements To Fishing Wharf Facilities Start

The city, after signing a lease with the federal Department of Transport for the Erie Street fishermen's wharf, is going ahead with improvements to services there.

Ald. Charles Banfield, chairman of the city's harbor committee, reported following a committee meeting this morning, work would be started right away to provide water right on the wharf and that a study would be made with regard to lighting.

The wharf is being widely used, the alderman said, and collection of fees has been good. The committee is also looking into ways and means of improving sewerage conditions in the vicinity of the wharf. Some complaints about this were made last winter.

FIRE INCENDIARY, CHIEF DISCOVERS

Blaze In Ten Mile Point Home Started In Two Separate Cupboards

Saanich Fire Chief Joseph Law said today that he has uncovered definite evidence that the person who broke into the Ten-Mile Point home of Mr. and Mrs. C. A. M. Hunter deliberately set it on fire this week.

The Hunters are en route to England on a visit. House was unoccupied when it was forcibly entered early Wednesday morning, ransacked and then fired. Saanich firemen succeeded in putting the fire out to keep damage down to $1,500, mostly smoke damage.

The chief said evidence that the blaze was of incendiary origin was contained in the fact that two separate fires were set in cupboards a considerable distance apart.

Sgt. Jack Hamilton of the Saanich police is in charge of investigations. Owing to the Hunters being away, he is unable to determine what was taken.

The sergeant said that a car was heard in that vicinity early Wednesday morning by residents of the area.

Aggressor Korean Forces Lost This One

U.S. Watching British Parleys In Moscow For Peace In Korea

WASHINGTON (UP)—Secretary of State Dean Acheson kept a close eye today on the efforts of Great Britain and India to negotiate an end to the Korean war.

He and other State Department officials had nothing to say officially about the current Anglo-Soviet talks in Moscow.

Nor would they discuss India's note to the United States and Russia in which it expressed a desire to see the current crisis settled within the United Nations.

British ambassador Sir Oliver Franks brought Acheson up to date on Britain's peace campaign. He declined to tell reporters details of his conversations.

Although U.S. officials were pessimistic about the outcome of the Moscow parleys, they noted press reports clearing Soviet censorship to the effect that Russia might be interested in seeking a peaceful solution to the Korean crisis.

Diplomatic observers here cited three reasons why Russia may be willing to listen to the British pleas for peace. They were:

1. Russian intervention to end the Korean war would give a tremendous boost to the Soviet peace propaganda campaign.
2. Soviet leaders may have miscalculated U.S. firmness against Communist aggression. A negotiated end to the present battle would give them a chance to escape the consequences of their error.
3. Russian propaganda agencies have insisted the war was started by the South Koreans. Refusal to try to end the conflict would hardly be consistent with these claims.

U.N. Would Act If Yugoslavia Hit

Speedy Aid Move Indicated If Other Balkan Armies Attack

LAKE SUCCESS, N.Y. (UP)—The United Nations Security Council will move to help Yugoslavia with lightning speed if her Balkan neighbors attack her, U.N. delegates said today.

Yugoslavia, menaced by the massing of Cominform troops on its borders, will seek action by the Security Council at the first act of aggression, informed sources indicated.

Seven Hurt In Two-Car Crash Near Duncan

Women Suffer From Flying Glass Cuts

Four Victoria men, two of their wives and a Westholme man, were injured in a two-car crash on the Island Highway near Duncan at 10 Thursday night. Injuries were not of a critical nature.

In Chemarus Hospital today in good condition are Mrs. William Fraser and Mrs. Bert McAdam, wives of two of the local men. They received multiple lacerations of the face, hands and arms.

Also treated at the hospital but not admitted were William Fisher, Macaulay Point, Esquimalt, the driver, and Cyril Purcell and Carl Nickerson, soldiers of Work Point Barracks, suffering from shock, and Bert McAdam, Macaulay Point, arm injuries.

Minor bruises were sustained by Jack Sweeney, Westholme Store, driver of the other vehicle, a light delivery truck. He was not taken to hospital.

Constable Thomas Kelly of the E.C. Police estimated that about $1,000 damage was done to vehicles, the Fisher car being the most heavily damaged.

The six taken to the hospital were in the five-passenger coupe driven by Fisher. Collision took place on a slight curve about 100 yards north of the C.P.R. crossing at the Westholme Indian Reserve.

The women, both in the front seat, suffered most of their injuries from flying glass. The front left wheels of the cars came together in the crash.

The average level of food consumption in Britain rose to 2,900 calories daily in 1949, just below the pre-war figure of 3,000.

Ducharme, whose tangled testimony resulted in one of the longest trials in Vancouver criminal court history, was convicted of the slaying of Blanche Ferne Fisher on Nov. 8 last.

A priest of the red-headed man's Roman Catholic faith—Father Gerald Hayes—spent the entire right comforting Ducharme from a kitchen chair in the cell.

Ducharme didn't sleep, he said, but "stood up very well all night long."

$12,000 A Day Canada's Navy Cost Off Korea

OTTAWA (UP)—The navy estimated it would cost more than $84,000 a week to maintain three destroyers in the Korean war zone, but said this was a drop in the bucket compared with their original assignment.

The destroyers Cayuga, Sioux and Athabaskan, now being readied at Pearl Harbor to join the United States task force "Yoke" off Korea, were to have gone to Europe on a five-month training cruise. That would have set the nation's taxpayers back nearly $2,000,000.

It costs roughly $4,000 a day to maintain a destroyer in service. Headquarters spokesmen said this included crewmen's pay, food, clothing, maintenance, and ammunition for practice sessions.

No naval or government official here was prepared to estimate for the record how long it would be before the three vessels returned to their home base at Esquimalt, B.C. They left there a week ago last Wednesday.

But Dr. Ales Bebler, chief of the delegation, while expressing concern about troop movements on Yugoslavia's border, pointed out that there have been similar reports for the past year. Asked whether he believed the current massing of troops would lead to open war, Bebler replied:

"I cannot say."

But Bebler acknowledged concern about the hostile press and radio broadcasts from the capitals of the Cominform countries. These outlets of Soviet propaganda charged that the United States was giving Yugoslavia military supplies, assistance and advice, and transforming the country into an American base.

"Nothing could be farther from the truth," Bebler said. "There are no U.S. officers in Yugoslavia, in the first place, in the second place, we have no military agreements with any foreign country."

'Last Chance' To Outlaw H-Bomb, Save Countries

WASHINGTON (UP)—The congressional atomic energy committee said today the world may be facing its last chance to outlaw hydrogen weapons that could destroy a city the size of Chicago in a single fiery burst.

In the most comprehensive report yet issued on the H-bomb, the committee hinted broadly at official confidence that the dreaded weapon will be produced.

The report outlined the awesome possibilities of the weapon and warned that agreement on international controls could be far more difficult to achieve once it becomes a reality.

When that day comes, it said, the nations able to produce it will have a greater incentive to conceal a portion of their stockpiles while pretending to reveal them.

"... If it is easier never to do what is still undone, rather than to undo what has been done—"

Uncle Denies He Attacked Niece Who Accuses Him

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Douglas Carapata denied today he had bludgeoned his niece, Mary McIntyre, former British Columbia career girl.

Police charged Carapata, 45, with assault with intent to commit murder after the young woman identified him Wednesday as her assailant. She was beaten June 3 with a hammer.

Suffering from loss of speech because of the attack, Miss McIntyre scribbled her accusation of her uncle.

"As God is my judge I did not strike Mary," Carapata told reporters.

Stanley Bouter, accused as an accessory, also denied guilt.

Day Of Prayer

Assessing The Possibilities

DEMOCRATIC GOVERNMENT COUNCILS all over the world, including the Cabinet in Ottawa, are busy trying to assess the implications of the Korean war. Not only are they faced with the problems of the fighting itself—the provision of aid to the United Nations forces and the progress of the battle—but they must estimate the probable course of events far from the scene of the shooting; they must determine whether Korea is an isolated instance in the Soviet program or whether it is actually the first of a series of aggressive acts that may spread into a conflict of global proportions. They are wondering—and so, too, are the people whose elected representatives they are—whether for “Korea” we might read “Germany,” “Yugoslavia,” or some other country. Hitler’s former Reich, particularly, provides a thought-provoking parallel. Divided into east and west in the same way that Korea was partitioned into north and south, its split population falling under the influence of the democracies on the one hand and of Russia on the other, and with a Soviet-sponsored armed force being developed under the guise of “people’s police,” that could function much as the Red Army-trained North Korean force has—Germany contains all the ingredients for a serious outbreak of violence. We do not say that such is the Soviet intention. We can only try to find out—and, in the absence of dependable facts, prepare our defences for the worst that could occur. The initial successes of the aggressors in Korea—before adequate manpower and heavy armament can be assembled for defence—might well give pause to those who are charged with the preparation of plans for Western Europe’s security. It takes time to establish a line that will hold; it takes even longer to organize the strength to push the invaders relentlessly back. And time, in modern warfare, is a commodity of vital importance which is not always available in the amounts desired by harried commanders.

One observer suggests that it may take six months even to launch the counter-offensive in Korea. What may follow is even more in the realm of speculation. It appears evident in any case that large Western forces are going to be committed to the struggle—which means that they will not be available for use in other theatres that may be threatened. Whether Russia is really desirous of peace, or whether she will pursue the course of aggrandizement at any cost, even war, will thus become evident in her actions. These will not be comfortable months or years for the democracies. Unfortunately, it appears that we shall have to measure our peace of mind in the size and number of our guns. That is the only argument which militant Communism recognizes.

That Sour Grapes Complex

MAJ-GEN. G. R. PEARKES, V.C., member of the House of Commons for the constituency of Nanaimo, told a federal Progressive Conservative audience at Colwood the other night that “we have a small, all-powerful Cabinet of six men who hold all the important posts; they have all been there for a long time.” This was the way the gallant soldier chose to give point to his view that the St. Laurent regime had usurped the “divine-right-of-kings” political philosophy—a cabinet supported by “a large and docile Liberal Party” greedy for power.

What the federal member for the important riding of Nanaimo says about the government at Ottawa, of course, is his own business. His castigation of the administration’s “extravagance in expenditure” is not a new theme. Members of His Majesty’s Loyal Opposition in every legislative forum in the British Empire have consistently viewed with alarm the actions of those who occupy the benches to the right of the Speaker. It is reasonable and proper that this should be so; no government worth its salt should be averse to being hauled over the coals for its sins of omission or commission, irrespective of the merits of such criticism.

What Maj-Gen. Pearkes seems to forget, however, is that the Liberal government at Ottawa was, after all, rejected by the people of Canada a trifle more than a year ago. We agree that a top-heavy majority enjoyed by any political party in office may have its disadvantages. But what does the member for Nanaimo propose to do about a condition in which Mr. St. Laurent finds himself surrounded by so many of his own political persuasion? And how loud would be the voice of the General against a Progressive Conservative administration placed in the same position in the national forum as that of the present Liberal Party? He may not care to answer that question.

It's Less Important Now

ALTHOUGH THE WEST HAS BEEN placed in a dangerous and uncomfortable position by the Communist action in provoking outright war in Korea, the Kremlin, too, by thus permitting the ideological conflict to enter upon a new phase, has lost an advantage it once held.

It is not so long ago that the delicate relations between Moscow and the United Nations were anxiously watched by all who feared for world peace. When a Russian delegate walked out on the Security Council or the General Assembly the world caught its breath and hoped he could be coaxed back before something terrible happened. Constant threats that opposition to the Soviet view might result in disruption of the carefully constructed peace organization kept Western representatives on tenterhooks. The invasion of South Korea changed all that. Unanimous action by the non-Communist members of the United Nations has revealed that the absence of Russia from the meetings is not a disaster—on the contrary, it has proved a boon. Instead of the usual Soviet veto and stalemate, the right-thinking nations of the world were able to come to a quick decision to oppose the aggression of the Communist North Korean army, and to implement that decision by the dispatch of American and other forces to carry out U.N. orders.

Strangely enough, the United Nations has not collapsed. Indeed, it is stronger than ever today as a result of its decisive stand. As one correspondent from Washington has written: “It remains to be seen if the Russians and the satellite bloc will replace their present boycott of the United Nations by complete rupture. Washington no longer cares.” The Soviet would seem to have overplayed its hand.

Sprays Better Than Propaganda Where Potato Bug Is Concerned

By JOHN BARTLETT, from Frankfurt

THE POTATO bug or Colorado beetle, until now just a terrible pest, has become a political figure in Germany.

The East German Government and the Soviet Union claim that pilots in American planes have been scattering the insects over the potato-growing areas of Eastern Germany. This, they say, has ruined the crop, and the people of Eastern Germany had better not expect many potatoes in their traditional potato soup next winter.

SERIOUS COMEDY

American officials were, at first inclined to laugh off the charges. Orders were given to make the most of them in an attempt at ridicule. But when the Soviet Union sent a formal note of complaint to the United States they realized the seriousness of the comedy.

It proved that the Stalinists, just like the Nazis, thought that by telling a big lie and repeating it they might get some people to believe them. And by this time no doubt there are a lot of people in East Germany who do believe it.

After all, is not the very name, Colorado beetle, proof that this is an American bug and had to be imported?

A quick check with history books discloses that the potato bug, a neat insect with sturdy orange shields marked by two black stripes, was first seen in the foothills of the Rocky Mountains in the middle of the 19th century. He used to eat weeds and other wild plants, but took a liking to potatoes and searched out this

European vegetable for his dinner wherever he found it. There is little doubt that the Eastern countries—Poland and Czechoslovakia also have registered complaints—are plagued by the potato bug. But so are Western Germany and other western countries. The latter, however, have joined international working groups for the control of the Colorado beetle.

American officials point out that if the Communists were less intent on fighting capitalism and more intent on fighting hunger they would take measures against the Colorado beetle. Western farmers, instead of searching out “saboteurs,” seek out “chemicals and other preventative sprays to combat the beetle.”

Throughout all of Germany last year there was a heavy infestation of Colorado beetle. The western occupying powers immediately got down to the business of acquainting the farmers with the latest methods for controlling it. Presumably all the Russian occupiers found time to teach was communism.

Since the Colorado beetle is unpolitical, the results were predetermined.

UNDER CONTROL

Like other scourges, the Colorado beetle grows if not molested. This year, his numbers have increased in the eastern territories. But in the west, where Marxist theories of the economic basis of politics are perhaps taken more seriously than in the Marxist-east, the pest is under control.

Never The Same

By SEBASTIAN HAFNER
From London

WHATEVER the immediate outcome of the military operations in Korea, it is already clear that the act of aggression which was committed on June 25 has completely changed the character and setting of world politics. After this act, nothing will ever be the same as it was before. One of the first, and perhaps the most far-reaching, of its effects is its impact on the United Nations.

When the organization of the United Nations was first conceived and founded, its chief function was meant to be to prevent aggression. During the first five years of its existence, it seemed that owing to the great power veto and to the use which Russia habitually made of her right to veto, the United Nations would never be able to fulfil that function, and by the end of 1949 everybody had quietly resigned himself to this.

IN THESE circumstances, it is an event of the first magnitude—as surprising as it is important—that in the first case of open military aggression across frontiers since its foundation, the United Nations has fully lived up to its original purpose. The action against North Korean aggression, which is now carried out by American, Australian, British and Canadian forces, is taken, not under any treaty of alliance or regional security system, but under the Charter of the United Nations, at the resolution of the U.N. Security Council. It is a United Nations police action, and it corresponds in an almost exemplary manner to the ideals which prompted the founders of the United Nations. The Security Council was called together within hours of the act of aggression occurring. It demanded that the aggressors withdraw behind their frontiers at once; and when this demand was disregarded, it imposed sanctions within 48 hours. Its decision has since been backed by 43 member nations of the U.N.

WHILE this sudden and unexpected assertion of the authority of the United Nations is as gratifying as it is surprising, it is obvious that it is entirely due to the absence of Russia. If Russia had taken her seat at the fateful Security Council sessions of June 25 and 27, she would have been able to veto any decision and action, and there is little doubt that she would have done so. In that case, any action by the United States and the Commonwealth would have been a purely national effort, with no clear international authority behind it. There would have been no authoritative decision about the right and wrong of the case, and no overwhelming world-wide line-up against the aggression of June 25.

THE ABSENCE of Russia from the U.N., which alone made it possible for the latter to fulfil its chief function, was quite fortuitous. Russia was boycotting the U.N. pending the general recognition and admission of the Communist government of China. In the ordinary course of things, this recognition and admission would have been found to occur sooner or later; and with the subsequent return of Russia to the Council table, the United Nations would have relapsed into a former paralysis and impotence.

After what has happened in the last fortnight, it is no longer so certain whether this will happen; nor can one help asking whether it is any longer desirable that it should happen.

THE RUSSIAN statement of last Tuesday, in which the U.N. Security Council is called “an obedient instrument of the American ruling classes,” and in which even Mr. Trygve Lie, the U.N. Secretary-General, who has striven so sincerely to bring Russia back to the U.N., is subjected to heavy abuse, reads as if Russia were preparing her definite withdrawal from the United Nations.

This would not be altogether surprising. Membership in the U.N. was valuable to Russia as long as she could thereby sabotage its functioning. In the Korean case, it is now too late for her to make such sabotage effective, owing to her blundering absence at the decisive sessions. Rather than find herself back in the U.N. unable to undo what has been decided, she may stay outside for good, banging the door behind her.

BUT EVEN if Russia should make no such decision of her own, the question of whether her continued membership in U.N. is desirable can now no longer be evaded by the other members. It had been apparent for some time, of course, that the United Nations without Russia might become a stronger organization than with her. The balance of international opinion had nevertheless hitherto been in favor of retaining Russian membership and keeping the U.N. a meeting ground for the free world and the Soviet world even if it thereby ceased to be an effective instrument of world security.

BUT THIS opinion rested on the assumption, widely held before June 25, that the Soviet world would not employ open military aggression of the Hitlerite kind in its political struggle against the rest of the world. This assumption has been shattered. After what has happened in Korea, the whole world will become far more security-minded than before. The slim chances of co-operation with Russia in and through the U.N. must be weighed anew against the need which has suddenly been made very manifest for an effective international instrument of collective security against armed aggression, wherever it occurs. It is now clear that the United Nations can become such an instrument—but only if Russia is out of it. It is also clear that no other instrument will give security to those nations which are outside all regional systems of alliance, such as Sweden, Yugoslavia or Persia.

Let Them Know The Facts

By NORA BELOFF From Washington

ALARMED at the distorted picture of the Korean war sold to the world by the Kremlin, the Americans are on the point of initiating a global propaganda campaign of their own.

The object: to refute charges that they are the warmongers and to show the world the “truth” about the war. The channels of mass communication, particularly the radio, recent high-level government conferences have, I understand, made plain that high priority is given by officials and legislators here to psychological warfare.

NOT UNIVERSAL

Except for mercenaries or stooges, Asiatic Communists battling against white men today in Korea and elsewhere “mostly believe they are fighting for a good cause.” This opinion was expressed by Senator William Benton, a millionaire and a businessman, and former Assistant Secretary of State for Public Affairs. It reflects a new and horrified awareness among influential Americans that the truth which is self-evident to them is not self-propagating to the outside world.

The knowledge that Americans have been losing and Russians winning the ideological battle for Asia, and the tremendous military implications of this defeat, have been driven home by events in Korea. The southern army was neither organized nor equipped for attack. Premeditated aggression by Communists in the north had been certified by the United Nations before the Americans intervened. None of this has prevented the Russians from charging the South Korean Republic with starting the trouble or from demanding the withdrawal of American “imperialists.” News of protest meetings against the American initiative is now pouring into Washington from every quarter of the globe.

Experts here say that a large section of world opinion, including hundreds of millions of Asiatics and the whole fighting force of North Korea, almost certainly believe the Russian version. They attribute the Soviet triumph in getting Asiatics not only to believe them but to sacrifice their lives for that belief to two main causes.

Firstly, the Communist leaders directed from Moscow pose as revolutionaries cleaning out corruption, redistributing the land, and helping the poor at a time when the old regimes are defunct and the whole continent is in a revolutionary fervor. The Americans, on the other hand, though they are genuinely concerned to raise living standards in these backward areas, have often, in the interests of peace, “business as usual,” and tranquility, involved themselves in sustaining unpopular conservative regimes.

Secondly, the Russians have used every conceivable propaganda device to hammer home their good intentions while the Americans have been content to let the facts speak for them. On the north side of the 38th parallel you had what Communist sources called “hundreds of cultural centres”: students and technicians were shipped in large numbers to Soviet schools and colleges, libraries were deluged with Korean translations of approved Communist literature.

On the other side of the 38th parallel, after the American withdrawal in 1949, the Koreans continued to receive military and economic aid and the Americans rested in the comfortable conviction that a free and independent people would automatically prefer liberal democracy to a totalitarian police state. The fact that no living Korean had ever experienced self-government, that the social framework of the old regime was cracking, that over half the population was illiterate, made that assumption—to say the least—naïve.

ABRUPTLY AWAKENED

The Americans have now abruptly awakened to the fact that they will have to do some mental hammering of their own. A campaign has been prepared to show the outside world—and particularly the peoples of Asia that the American objectives are peace, progress and political freedom, and to demonstrate what Secretary of State Acheson has called, “the plain difference between Communist pretensions and Communist performance.”

As Our Readers See It

OR TRY PRAVDA?

We are all aware of the contradictory news being reported by radio and press. Supposing it to be only 50 per cent accurate, ought we to throw away our dearly won peace and plunge again into war? We are told that North Korea is at war with the United Nations. From our news reports it is obvious that North Korea is at war with the United States who has gone into battle waving the flag of the U.N.

We are told that North Korea marched against South Korea in an act of “unprovoked aggression.” Whether they did or did not is open to doubt. We are given no details. But applying our rule of 50 per cent accuracy we arrive at a conclusion that there was no aggression at all. It is a fact that North Korea (or near its shores) of which we have been kept in ignorance, and which has flamed into bloodshed.

It is natural for North and South Korea to help one another. This probably makes it impossible for a “great power” of a different race, color and language to go in and take over by force. Our puffed-up neighbors may have overlooked this fact. Let us bring aid to the poverty-stricken Koreans, but not by causing them to be killed.

If the United Nations made a mistake in giving the “go” sign to the States (after war had started), it is up to us to exert ourselves to see that justice is done. It is not too late to stop the carnage. We can reject the propagandized and slanted versions of the news being ladled out to us and demand that our government revise its censorship methods. We shall not be told the whole truth until we demand it. If we cannot get it in press and radio we should send delegates to the war area to learn it as best they can and report back to us personally.

Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent urges the Liberal Party to give women a greater voice in its affairs. He says he would like to have one woman on his side of the House and one woman in caucus. “All our Liberal women ask,” he said, “is that they shall not be kept in the background because they happen to be women.”

THE GRIM position of United States troops in South Korea took only a temporary turn for the better as the result of a successful withdrawal to new defence lines just south of the Kum River, which forms a difficult obstacle to the advance of the North Korean invaders.

This operation was the culmination of what Gen. MacArthur's headquarters describes as “one of the most skillful and heroic holding and rearguard actions in history.” Its purpose was to provide time for the movement of reinforcements.

The story of that fighting withdrawal is an epic. About 1,600 Americans had fought 18,000 North Koreans who were supported by heavy Russian-built tanks. This meant 10 to 1 odds—odds which at times swelled to about 20 to 1.

American losses appear to be remarkably small for such a fight. A Communist broadcast claimed that 700 were killed and 200 captured, but MacArthur last night gave the figure as 42 killed, 190 wounded and 236 missing.

Of course the successful crossing to the south bank of the Kum doesn't mean that the battle is finished—not by a long shot. The crossing is difficult but even as this was written the North Koreans were preparing for a fresh attack. In anticipation of this, allied planes had been bombing the Red supply trains north of the river.

Still, the successful withdrawal to the south bank of the river could represent the turning point in what thus far has been a most unequal conflict. American reinforcements and war supplies are converging on Korea.

While we have dug our toes in, and are in Korea to stay, yet there is a long, hard fight ahead of us before we can claim victory. Don't forget what this column has said before—that Communist North Korea might be the funnel through which hundreds of thousands of Manchurian and Chinese Communist troops would be poured against us in South Korea.

BABY ATOM BOMBS

Winnipeg Free Press
The announcement that the United States has perfected a “baby atom bomb” is said in Washington to be the biggest military news since the war. It has greatly altered all military calculations and greatly improved the chance of western Europe to defend itself against a vastly superior ground force.

The “baby” bomb can be carried by a light jet bomber or fitted into a guided missile. It can be used speedily and accurately against infantry concentrations. Since Russia's strength lies mainly in vast concentrations of ground troops it is highly vulnerable to the new weapon.

Facing the danger of atomic attack on its front ranks, Russia must recalculate the logistics of a western invasion. The world's prospect of peace lies in the hope that, in these calculations, Russia will decide that aggression is not worth the risks involved.

Ups And Downs

By BRIAN A. TOBIN

“I SEE,” said the Elevator Man, “where an institution on the Isle of Wight staged a cross-country race for boys. One of them kept on running and hasn't turned up yet. The institution is a youth reformatory. I guess they're depending a lot on being surrounded by sea, because that sure seems a funny form of amusement for that kind of place. Something like teaching musketry to penitentiary inmates or encouraging pickpockets to take up sleight of hand as a hobby. Mezzanine!”

“Well,” said the Elevator Man, “I guess you can't have too much speed in a cross-country race, especially when you're heading away from the high walls. But it seems that speed can have its complications. Jet pilots are complaining their planes are so fast that the maps they're given aren't any good to them. The Defence Department charts are on a fairly large scale, and the jet planes fly over onto the next sheet before the pilot can line up a landmark. Now that could become kind of annoying. You can imagine a pilot saying to himself, ‘I guess I'll aim at that hill—I mean that bridge—I mean that town—I mean that—oops! I'm off the map.’ Lower main!”

“All joking aside,” said the Elevator Man, “I wonder if a lot of us aren't in the same fix. We're traveling so fast these days our maps aren't any good to us. We don't have time to fix on a goal before we've passed it. I don't mean real maps, of course. Our flight maps are the written experience of the race—the words of wisdom that have come down to us which we have put into books and precepts. Maybe we'd better slow down a little and look at them more closely. Otherwise, we not only won't know where we're going—we won't even know where we've been.”

THE HOME GARDEN

Fertilizer Needed Now To Aid Plant Growth

By JACK G. BEASTALL

During the summer months, when flowers and vegetables are making the most growth, it is common practice to feed them with liquid manure or liquid fertilizer.

Side dressings of dry fertilizer are also used but are much slower in acting because the salts must be converted to a liquid by the soil moisture before the roots can pick them up. Liquid manure is made by placing any recognized garden manure (cow, sheep, chicken) in a piece of sack, and immersing it in water, usually by hanging it from a crossbar.

This makes what we call a stock liquid and it is usually dark in color. By diluting a small quantity until it has the color of weak tea, we have a suitable liquid to apply to the plants. The manure must always be rotted or dried—never fresh.

Liquid fertilizer is simply a teaspoon of complete garden fertilizer dissolved in a gallon of water. Larger quantities are made in the same proportion, and the fertilizer may be hung in a sack in the same manner as used for manure.

STAND OVERNIGHT. It is wise to let the fertilizer stand at least overnight, and there will always be a residue because of the filler which is added to the fertilizer formula.

Liquid feeding should not be attempted unless the soil is reasonably moist, and some authorities advise a thorough watering in after each application.

Because a little supplementary feeding does good, it does not follow that a lot will do better. Too much forcing can do harm. One application every two weeks is about right for the beginner; once in 10 days when you become accustomed to the solution and its effect on the plants.

It is not easy to recommend a definite amount to a plant because so many factors are involved, and the needs of the individual plants will vary. Give a little, say half a measuring cup to start with and watch the effect. Leaving a few plants untreated enables one to keep a fairly good check on results.

World 'Sensitive Areas' Closely Watched By U.S.

Plans For Resistance To Aggression Far From Korea Given Consideration

By ELTON C. FAY

WASHINGTON (AP)—Russia may be trying to lure the United States into so great a military effort in Korea that it could be helpless to challenge large-scale aggression elsewhere.

Illustrating this is a question posed for President Truman at a press conference Thursday and his cautious reply.

He was asked: "Are we prepared to resist aggression everywhere in the world?"

His reply was that the situation would have to be met as it developed.

United States military leaders attach importance to persistent rumors of concentration of Chinese Communist forces and the enrollment of Russian volunteers for the aid of the North Korean Communist army.

But this foreign-power help may not be thrown suddenly into the war to crush South Koreans and drive U.S. forces out of Korea for a quick victory. Instead, the Moscow-dictated strategy may be to feed the help in gradually, always maintaining superiority in force—and compelling the United States to put more and more divisions, planes and ships into the campaign.

Meanwhile, in these early months of the war, the Korean campaign will afford Russia opportunity to measure the battle-skill of American troops, airmen and sailors—and equally important—the effectiveness of U.S. weapons.

It can also provide an index for the Russians to decide how determined and how prepared the United States is to fight at any point where Moscow pushes the remote-control button of war.

Gen. Omar Bradley, chairman of the U.S. Joint Chiefs of Staff, was reported by chairman Millard Tydings (Dem.-Md.) of the Senate armed services committee as having said that defence department and other officials are carefully watching five or six "sensitive areas" aside from Korea.

POWDER-KEG

These areas were not specifically identified by Tydings, but obviously they include such points as the powder-keg in Europe, the Middle East, south-east Asia, Formosa and the

RAILROAD BUILT IN ALBERTA TO BE SHELLED

WAINWRIGHT, Alta. (CP)—Ever hear of the Hell-fire Pass and Whizbang Railroad?

That's what troops at Wainwright's big summer army camp call Canada's newest—and most dangerous—railroad.

The last spike was driven in the one-mile network a few days ago and the line's spanking, new rolling stock is all set to go.

But in a few days that rolling stock is going to take a terrific beating. The railroad is snail in the middle of the Wainwright tank-firing range.

The H.F. & W.R.'s sole piece of rolling stock carries a tank-shaped target which will be hammered to pieces by 75-millimetre Sherman tank guns.

The uniforms of the Yeomen of the Guard, the "Beef-eaters," were designed at the order of Henry VIII for his troops to wear at the Royal meeting on the field of the Cloth of Gold.

Exports To U.S. At New High

OTTAWA (CP)—Canadian imports hit an all-time monthly peak in May, and at the same time exports to the United States touched a new record.

The high of $177,200,000 in exports to the U.S. resulted in Canada's adverse trade balance with that country being slashed to $18,300,000 for the month, compared with last year's May debit of $49,100,000 and $22,900,000 for April.

The grand total of imports in May was $290,200,000, compared with $230,900,000 in April and $250,500,000 in May of 1949.

U.S. May Call Reserves, National Guard For Duty

Truman Considers Asking For More Funds;
Says Reds Will Be Driven Out Of S. Korea

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Truman predicted the Korean Reds will be driven back to their own territory.

He said Thursday he was considering a request to Congress for more money for military purposes in the near future.

Earlier, the Senate armed services committee had unanimously approved a move to speed delivery of several billion dollars' worth of combat planes.

The President said he would take all steps necessary to bring the Korean battle to a successful conclusion.

Among actions under consideration, he listed:

Calling up reserves, specialists and the National Guard.

Mobilization of manpower in general.

Meanwhile, Senator Lyndon John (Dem.-Tex.) called for an immediate speed-up in the mobilization of industry as well as manpower. He said war essential industries should be converted to "round-the-clock 24-hour production."

A member of the Senate armed services committee, Johnson told reporters:

"We are still geared for a cheap, quick war in Korea, although it is plainly apparent this will be a costly, prolonged operation."

The Texas senator urged the utmost speed in producing 6,000 aircraft now on order and reactivating combat and cargo ships from the mothball fleet. He said these ships now number 2,000.

PLAN SPEED-UP

The defence department announced late Thursday that a speed-up in the production of planes is already being discussed with aviation companies.

At his press conference, Mr. Truman reflected strong confidence despite the critical war situation.

Bombarded with questions on U.S. reverses in Korea, he said he still is hopeful, as he was a week ago, that the tide of battle will turn shortly.

A correspondent asked: "What assurance can we have that we are not getting the far licked out of us?"

"We have never happened to the United States yet and it won't happen this time," the President replied.

DANCE SKETCHES

Mary Tiffany Charms Audience Of Teachers

By AUDREY ST. D. JOHNSON

"Dance Sketches" by Mary Tiffany occupied the morning concert spot of the Summer School session at Victoria High School.

Miss Tiffany was partnered at the piano by Andre Vaneuf and together, they created a program of images and moods in great variety. Miss Tiffany is one of America's leading dancers of the interpretive and modern school, achieving the prominence not only through her superb technique but through a vital imagination and a rare and intriguing personality.

In her more serious moods she is like a flame, briefly, but vividly lighting a thought such as Walt Whitman's "I think I could turn and live with animals," or illuminating the beautiful Bach hymns. On the other hand, her sense of humor is fresh and sparkling expressing itself in the delicious farce of "Country Gardens" and "On the Road." Throughout, her timing, balance and control were extraordinary.

Andre Vaneuf writes a good deal of Miss Tiffany's music and also provided a group of violin solos that had an especially haunting quality.

First Annual Picnic

Novelty races, a softball game and horse-shoe pitching competition highlighted the first annual Vancouver Island Mink Breeders' Association picnic this week.

Bill James directed the sports events. Refreshments were served by Stan Cosburn and Mrs. Alex Murray. The picnic was held at the South Vancouver Island Rangers' rifle range.

Belgian Doctor Claims He Can Tell Sex Of Baby Before Birth

By ERIC KENNEDY

BRUSSELS (Reuter) — Dr. Pierre Rosa, 33-year-old junior gynecologist at Brussels University Hospital, claims to be the first doctor in the world to be able to forecast the sex of an unborn child with complete accuracy.

His success climaxes 10 years of intensive research.

Although convinced his method is infallible, Dr. Rosa does not intend to commercialize his discovery.

His colleague and assistant, 40-year-old Dr. Joseph Finard, told the story of Dr. Rosa's discovery six months ago:

"Dr. Rosa lifted his eyes from a microscope. 'It is a boy,' he told me.

"That is just the way it happened. One day we were floundering, producing no results. The next day, we had done it."

"But it was Dr. Rosa who really discovered the secret."

Dr. Rosa took up the story. In 1944, soon after he obtained his degree, he began working to solve the age-old secret.

First they tried special X-rays; then blood tests; finally, a Swedish method of examining the pupils of the mother's eyes.

A few of the systems were good, but none was perfect.

"As usual in these cases," Dr. Rosa continued, "we had an amazing stroke of good luck. Overnight, we hit upon a new method."

"Details to the layman are rather difficult to explain and very technical."

Roughly the method is this—four months before the normal scheduled date of the birth of the child, a needle is inserted in the mother's womb and a quantity of fluid is drawn off. This fluid is mixed with a series of chemicals.

If the mixture turns blue it's a boy. If the resulting concoction is red, then it's a girl.

Dr. Rosa said that, to date, he had carried out 52 tests. His forecast has been right in every case.

"But," he added, "there are several factors to be taken into account. First, I do not recommend the method, for there is always an element of danger both for the mother and the unborn child."

"Personally, I have never experienced any complications, but there is always a possibility of infection and even of a miscarriage."

Year in year out quality has always been and will always be the first consideration with

Giant Killers And Victims In City Tennis Tourney

UPSETS IN THE CITY tennis tourney at Victoria Lawn Tennis Club Thursday weren't confined to men's play. Mrs. Bessie Wilson, right, defeating second-seeded "Tommy" Elmsley, left, 6-2, 6-4, to gain finals of women's singles. Earlier in day Mrs. Wilson had eliminated Vi Pearson, 6-0, 6-1.

Mrs. Todd Sinks 20-Footer For Berth In Golf Finals

VANCOUVER (CP)—Just as the experts said, Babs Davies of Vancouver's Marine Drive and Victoria's Mrs. Margaret Todd match strokes today in the final of the British Columbia women's golf championship.

But Thursday both had troubles getting as far as the 36-hole final at Point Grey course. Mrs. Todd ran into veteran Mrs. Brice-Evans of Capilano and finished the semi-final on the 20th hole with a terrific 20-foot putt. The Vancouver player finished the hole in par five, putting the pressure on the favored Victoria entry to halve and stay in the match.

She spent a good two minutes reading the green before tapping the ball for a perfect stroke that swung wide, then rolled back on course and "dropped in without hesitation."

Miss Davies paired with Mrs. Tom Dunlop, talked into entering the tournament, and was one stroke down at the 12th. But a rally won her the next four holes and she ended the match on the 16th green.

CANADIAN AMATEUR GOLF PREVIEW

Ontario Rules Strong Favorite To Capture Willingdon Trophy

SASKATOON (CP)—A swarm of golfers from coast to coast today got down to the serious business of sharpening up their game in final practice rounds for a triple-header championship.

Eight four-man teams will fight it out Saturday over 36 holes of medal play for the Willingdon Cup and the provincial team championship. At the same time eight youngsters will decide who is the best junior golfer in Canada.

The team play and junior show provide a gala window-dressing for the Canadian amateur championship which opens Monday and runs the full week at match play.

Entries for the amateur have reached 98—a sizeable field for a western staging of the annual competition. Forty of that number will be busy tomorrow at team and junior play.

All provincial teams had checked in last night and many of the earlier arrivals tried out the Saskatoon Golf and Country Club's layout.

WESLOCK FAVORED

Jerry Kesselring, lanky Kitchener, Ont., star and a former junior champion, had a 73 in his practice round, but there was a lot of eyebrow-lifting when Nick Weslock, the Windsor-Detroit veteran, fired a 69 without exerting himself.

With an absence of American stars for the amateur competition, Weslock has been installed as favorite to take the title won last year at Saint John, N.B., by Dick Chapman, who hails variously from Ostrerville, Mass., to Pinehurst, N.C.

There was fairly general agreement today that the team to beat was the Willingdon Cup, the defending quartette from Ontario, behind Weslock and Kesselring. The squad is bolstered by veteran Jack Nash of London and newcomer Jack Hamell of Toronto.

If Ontario slips, say the experts, it will be a wide-open scramble. Bob Morrison of Victoria heads up a strong British Columbia team. Bob Hall, last year's Canadian junior champion, leads an entirely new Quebec team into action, and from Manitoba comes a formidable quartette led by the veteran Allan Boes.

GOVERNMENT 'DEAL' ASKED BY JOE LOUIS

Wants Pledge From Charles Fight To Cover Back Taxes

NEW YORK (UP)—Apparently the oft-repeated question, "Will Joe Louis come out of retirement?" will be answered by Uncle Sam.

President Jim Norris of the International Boxing Club said today he hopes to promote a Louis title fight against N.B.A. heavyweight champion Ezzard Charles in September—if a deal can be worked out with the U.S. government about Joe's income taxes.

Norris said that Louis owes Uncle Sam back income taxes from 1947.

And, Norris said, the only thing that could coax Brown Bomber Joe into trying to regain the heavyweight crown would be if the government would "make a deal" to take Louis' entire share of the purse as a tax settlement.

If this can be worked out, the I.B.C. head declared, there's a good chance for a Louis-Charles fight in Yankee Stadium during the last week in September. Norris also is working on a plan for the stadium for the first week in September—a middleweight title fight between champion Jake LaMotta and Sugar Ray Robinson.

The LaMotta-Robinson scrap would comply with an order from the National Boxing Association that LaMotta must put his crown on the line against Robinson within 90 days from last Wednesday—when he successfully defended it against Tiberio Mitri of Italy.

LaMotta, who picked up the largest purse of his career, $34,681, for outpointing Mitri in 15 rounds, said he was willing to fight Sugar Ray "if the price was right."

In 10th Defeat

The cellar-place Standard Furniture team of the Senior B Men's Softball League went down to its 10th defeat in 13 starts last night, being soundly thrashed, 18 to 1, by Argosy Cafe.

Don Davies on the hill for the cafe men allowed the furniture men just one hit.

Tonight Naval Reserve will meet Post Office at Heywood Avenue at 6:30.

Darrell Popham Lost To Shamrocks Tonight

Offering no excuses for Wednesday night's surprising 9 to 1 loss to Richmond Kerrisdale here, coach Arnold Ferguson of the Shamrocks said today as the team prepared to leave for Vancouver and a match with Burrards.

"It was just one of those things. There's no accounting for it. And you saw what happened." "I'll admit the boys were a bit tense," he added, "but maybe we'll snap out of it tonight."

POPHAM INJURED

The only player change for the game with Burrards finds Red McMillan replacing Darrell Popham on defence.

Popham suffered a badly sprained ankle in the game against Richmond and no chances of aggravating the injury will be taken. McMillan missed the Rocks last game, being out of town.

A victory over Burrards would be a big one for the locals as it would put them in undisputed possession of third place, four

A's GET BREAKS STILL BOOT GAME

Tri-City Ruins Good Mound Trick By Smith

By PETE SALLAWAY

Usually a team has to make its own breaks, but last night the Victoria Athletics were smiled on twice by Dame Fortune and still dropped a heart-breaking 4 to 3 decision to Tri-City Braves as the clubs opened a four-game W.I.L. series. It marked the third straight loss for the A's in their current home stand.

After giving up the lead on an unearned run in the seventh inning the Athletics tossed away a golden opportunity to at least tie the score in the eighth. Jim Moore got a life at first base when his easy infield pop got lost in the lights. Gene Thompson followed with an infield roller that looked a cinch double play ball until it took a crazy bounce away from Al Spaeter and went for a single with Moore ending up on third. Johnny Hack proceeded to pop up to the infield and Jim Wert hit into his second double play and what looked like a promising rally petered out like a dud firecracker.

Loss tossed away a beautiful pitching effort by hard-luck Ronnie Smith. The lanky right-hander gave up 10 hits the same as his opponent Lou McCollum. Smith issued three passes while McCollum walked one and that didn't come until the ninth inning.

MOORE HITS WELL

Second sacker Jimmy Moore continued to hit the ball well with three for four, including a double, to pace the A's offensively.

For the second night in a row the Athletics secured a comfortable early lead but were unable to hold it. In the first inning Marty Krug lifted the ball out of the park for his first home run at home. Gene Thompson followed with a single and Johnny Hack smacked a four-master to move the A's ahead 3 to 0.

Successive singles by Jim Warner and Clint Cameron followed by Bud Peterson's home run put Tri-City back on even terms in the fourth.

It was in the seventh that Tri-City pushed across what proved to be the winning run. With one away Dick Faber doubled to left centre. McCollum singled through the shortstop hole and Faber, after stopping at third, scored when Hack allowed Thompson's throw from the outfield to go through him with nobody backing up the

Seattle Takes Third Position In Coast League

Oakland Continues Pennant Pace By Thumping Hollywood

With Oakland holding a one-game lead in the Coast League race today, it begins to look as if Hollywood Stars, San Diego Padres and the first division will never be the same again.

Once more the Acorns thumped Hollywood last night, this time by 9 to 2. Seattle Rainiers, meanwhile, numbed San Diego again 13 to 6 and took over third place in the process.

At Oakland, it was a battle between the Hollywood crutch brigade and the old folks at home. Hard hit by player ailments for the past month, the Stars saw another key personality rendered hors d' combat last night. A hard-hit grounder cracked one of infielder Murray Franklin's ribs.

Rainiers smote three San Diego moundmen for 13 blows and this, combined with neat strategy, was more than enough to drown out the booming Padre bats.

155,000 See World Soccer Tourney Finals

RIO DE JANEIRO (AP)—Brazil took a commanding lead in the final series of the world soccer cup tournament Thursday by beating Spain 6 to 1 before a crowd estimated at 155,000.

Uruguay nosed out Sweden 3 to 2 at Sao Paulo.

An unruly crowd stormed the Rio Municipal Stadium, and several thousand fans broke through police lines and got free seats. An undetermined number was injured in the melee with police.

Brazil now has four points in the final standings, as a result of its victories yesterday and last Sunday over Sweden. Uruguay has three points, obtained by its victory yesterday and a tie with Spain Sunday. Spain has a point and Sweden has none.

FROM THE FANSTAND

By PETE SALLAWAY, Times Sports Editor

What gloom. Thursday morning was certainly a crepe-hanging occasion for Victoria's two major teams—the Athletics and Shamrocks. Respective followers were stunned over the inglorious setbacks and some of my fellow workers even went as far as to suggest a black border around the sports page. Another wag wanted to publish the famous "Burial of Moses." Matters are not quite that bad. There's nothing wrong that a couple of victories won't rectify.

No Explanation Needed

For once coach Arnold Ferguson of the Shamrocks had little to say after the game. His only remark was "I should have scored four goals myself." Fergy was smart enough to realize no one player could be blamed for the loss. It was just one of those nights when the entire team was off color.

Reg Patterson, business manager of the Athletics, was another who believed that silence is golden. "Another one like that and I'm going to head for the Sooke hills," was his only comment.

Abel's Views On Television

Spending some time Wednesday with Bob Abel, genial president of the Western International League from Tacoma, I got an idea of just how serious a blow is being struck at baseball by television. With the Seattle Rainiers of the Coast League televising a number of their games each week, Abel is in an ideal location to observe its result on attendance at the Tacoma W.I.L. games. "There is little doubt the situation is a bad one and you can look for our team located at Salem to suffer as soon as Portland starts putting Coast League games on video," Abel said. "That is a certainly within a short time and Salem will be on a direct channel. What the final outcome will be I don't know, but my opinion is that minor leagues operating in towns off the television channels may be the only ones to survive. Right now there are a large number of minor leagues in the east ready to fold their tents. They just can't operate within the range of the television stations putting the major-league games on the air."

Williams' Loss Unfortunate

Serious injury suffered by Ted Williams in this week's All-Star ball club may result in another blast at the summer classic by the club owners. I will remember the moaning that took place when the great Dizzy Dean's pitching career was rudely interrupted after his being hurt in an earlier All-Star engagement.

Loss of Williams might easily cost the Boston Red Sox the American League pennant. Recognized as one of the great hitters of all time, his big bat could mean the difference between a winner and an also-ran should the flag race get close in the waning stages. Then again the Boston club has lost his drawing power at the gate.

However, it is a pretty safe bet that the All-Star game is bigger than any group of owners. It has become extremely popular with the fans who share in its promotion through the selection of the starting line-ups outside of the pitchers. And with the proceeds being turned over to the players' pension fund the game takes on a charity aspect. Williams' injury is just one of those unfortunate breaks, but the game will continue as long as it retains its present popularity with the masses.

Predicts Quick Death For Minor League Ball

By JACK CUDDY

NEW YORK (UP)—Frank J. Shaughnessy, president of the International League, predicted the "quick death" of minor-league baseball today unless the December major-league meetings at St. Petersburg, Fla., adopt the "50-mile restriction" for radio and television.

Even before December a half-dozen of the nation's 58 minor circuits will have folded because of the new unrestricted "airing" of major-league games, declared the white-haired, fiery-faced International proxy.

He stressed that the half-dozen's fadout would mark the first minor-league decrease since the war ended in 1945.

"We have petitioned Commissioner Chandler and the major-league owners for relief," Shaughnessy said at International headquarters. "Unless we are granted that relief in December, minor-league baseball will suffer a quick death; and the major-league clubs will lose their sources of talent."

George M. Trautman, president of the National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues (minor circuits), applied to Chandler and the major owners at their "all-star" meeting in Chicago last Monday. Trautman reported that total minor-league attendance was off approximately 1,000,000 for the first month of play.

Shaughnessy continued: "I'm a member of Trautman's executive committee. When we met with Commissioner Chandler and the major-league owners at Chicago, we suggested that the broadcasting and telecasting of major-league games be restricted to a radius of 50 miles from each stadium that is airing a game."

Under the current set-up, major-league games can be broadcast over the networks throughout the nation, and they can be televised throughout territory served by co-axial cables—the east, midwest and portions of the south, the only current restriction is that a major-league game shall not be "aired" in a minor-league city during the actual playing time of that city's minor-league game.

That widespread broadcasting and telecasting of major play was permitted this year by the justice department, which ruled that any attempt by organized baseball to curb the airing of major games might be construed a monopoly.

Crack U.S. Golfer Visiting In City

Gene Littler, former United States junior golf champion, is a visitor in town for a few days. Littler is regarded as one of the finest prospects in golf and is even now at 20 years of age a scratch handicapper.

Formerly of San Diego, Littler recently moved to Seattle where he plans to enter the clothing business.

Playing with George Straith Jr., at Victoria Golf Club Thursday he went nine holes in par figures.

In last year's U.S. junior tourney, Littler lost out to Spokane's Al Mengert who will be remembered as the recent winner of the P.N.G.A. title in Vancouver.

Women's Softball Playoffs To Open Here Next Week

Zone playoffs for women's softball clubs will commence here next week with Moose representing the city in the intermediate division and Toppers competing as junior representatives.

In last night's concluding game of the regular season, Toppers whipped Allsorts 12 to 2, to wind up in fourth place in the league race behind Red's, Moose and North Saanich.

Marguerite Shaw tossed a two-hitter for the winners, losing her shutout in the seventh inning.

Korea Provides Lessons For W. Europe Defence

Allied Military Observers Say Changes To Be Made Where Weaknesses Seen

LONDON (UP)—Military observers said today the Korean war may be a blessing in disguise for the defence of Western Europe against any Soviet aggression.

Their only hope is that the price of the lessons being learned in Korea will not be too great.

Every mile reeled off by Communist tanks in Korea has exposed weaknesses in the tactical concepts underlying existing plans for western Europe.

The Red successes have demonstrated the futility of counting heavily on air power to stop armor.

It has underscored the obvious—that there is no substitute yet for the properly armed and equipped foot soldier.

MORE DIVISIONS

Estimates of the number of infantry divisions necessary to defend the west may have to be upped considerably as a result of these lessons.

Training will have to be made more realistic and bloodier—like the World War II British-run schools for Allied invasion troops—to prevent green troops from panicking under fire as some fresh U.S. troops did in Korea.

There may be new pressure from Military men to rearm western Germany, in one form or another, to tap one of the world's largest pools of war-experienced manpower.

A new tank development program, called by U.S. officers in Germany as much as two years ago, probably will be started following the failure of American armor before superior Russian tanks in real fighting.

American officers who organized the U.S. constabulary in Germany as a special hard-hitting armored force reported after field tests that U.S. armor was no match for Russian armor and asked that something be done about it.

These officers now are training European soldiers in the use of that same armor under the military aid program.

On the other hand, experts said, the Korean war has brought a new appreciation for "old-fashioned" weapons.

When the U.S. began sending P-47 Thunderbolt fighters to Greece and Turkey, for example, Greeks and Turks called for faster jet fighters instead.

GROUND SUPPORT

American commanders, combat veterans, pointed out that Thunderbolts still were among the best planes in the air for ground support and tank busting.

Reports from Korea have quoted U.S. pilots as saying Thunderbolts probably would have smashed more enemy convoys than their jets, which are too fast.

Disappointment with B-29 raids in Korea is "unjustified," the experts said.

The Superforts were not designed for troops support but for strategic missions.

Experts here believe the Korean invasion was staged as a "dress rehearsal" for a possible future Soviet attack on western Europe. But the west, they said, can learn just as much from the fighting there as the Soviets.

Arsenals In Year Could Equal Rate Of 1943, Canadian Claims

By RAE CORELLI
ST. PAUL L'HERMITE, Que. (UP)—Canadian Arsenals Ltd. now could equal in "less than a year" Canada's ammunition output at the end of the first three years of World War II, a senior company official said today.

J. D. Chisholm, 50-year-old head of the federally-owned corporation's plant here—there are seven altogether—said his prediction was not based on any speed-up under new defence policies. Rather, he explained, it was founded on the "standby" rate at which the plants have operated since the corporation was set up at the end of the war.

Each plant has a different job. One at Valcartier, Que., manufactures small arms ammunition. A second at Longueuil, Que., heavy-calibre guns, the war-christened 25-pounders and others. At the Valleyfield, Que., plant men are making explosives and at Lindsay, Ont., ammunition for components like fuses and shells are made. At Leaside, Ont., technicians are perfecting radar sets and other delicate instruments.

In this somewhat village at the eastern tip of Montreal Island, experts are filling the shells from Lindsay with the high explosives from Valleyfield. The corporation now supplies 80 per cent of the ammunition needs of the three armed forces. They get the remainder from Britain. This plant's 450-man staff—it totaled 14,000 at the height of World War II—also is filling bombs and bullets for other Commonwealth countries.

"Since the end of the war," Chisholm said, "we have devoted our time to maintaining the plant in good condition and retaining the special skills and techniques of the personnel required for production of ammunition and for the development of new manufacturing methods."

"We also are completing the process of data which will enable us to get into production fast in case of an emergency."

Trail Riders Start Annual Rockies Trips

BANFF, Alta. — A colorful cavalcade of 70 dude riders from all over Canada and the United States set out from here this morning on their 27th annual five-day saddle sortie as far from the beaten track as the trails will take them.

They are members of the Trail Riders of the Canadian Rockies, who this year will establish their base tepee camp near the headwaters of Spray River, some 30 miles south of Canmore. They were transported from Banff to Canmore, going thence to a point 20 miles up the Calgary Power Company road, where they took to the western saddle for their eight-mile ride into camp.

Headed by their president, Fern P. Brewster of Banff, the riders will set out on new trails each morning, lunch on the trailside and return to base camp at nightfall for sing-song and nightly campfire entertainment. The five-day itinerary will include side trips to Mount Assiniboine, Marvel Lake, Palliser Pass, Bryant Creek, Whiteman Pass and other beauty spots accessible only by trail.

Headless Body Of Youth Found In Nine-Foot Shark

GALVESTON, Tex. (AP)—The remains of a man-eating shark were discovered in shallow Galveston Bay waters Thursday with a human foot protruding from the carcass.

Investigators found the torso of a youth, perhaps 17 or 18, in the fish's belly.

Dr. N. D. Schofield, Galveston coroner, said the head of the youth was missing. The pelvis, part of the backbone and lower extremities and the lad's feet were recovered.

of the shrimper Angelo 11, said he and his crew netted a nine-foot shark nine miles out in the Gulf of Mexico on their way into the harbor. He said the fish died and they pitched it off the boat in the vicinity of Fifth and Wharf Streets.

Thursday Arthur Oakley, a truck driver, saw the foot sticking out of the decomposed shark.

Deaths in childbirth in Canada dropped from 5.6 deaths per 1,000 live births in 1928 to 1.5 in 1948.

Frightened Horse Bolts Dragging Bicycle Stand

A frightened horse cause considerable amount of damage Thursday at the Glen Lake corner store area.

The trouble started when 12-year-old Beanna Silman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. Silman, Glen Lake Road, rode her brother's horse to the Glen Lake store to shop and tied the animal to the bicycle stand.

Apparently frightened by the flapping of the store awning, the horse bolted down the road, dragging the stand with it. The stand crashed into a parked car owned by R. Beale and did about $125 damage.

The frightened animal then broke free, crashed through a fence on the property of H. Peterson and then ran home.

The horse suffered severe injuries as a result. Mrs. W. Allen of the lake store said 11 stitches were required to close cuts and that it had numerous bruises and scratches.

Traffic Tragedy Inquest Monday

Wong died in Jubilee Hospital shortly after being taken there by city police. He was struck by a Saanich police car driven by Constable Albert M. Green on a run to Jubilee Hospital with an injured boy. Siren was blaring and red lights on the car flashing at the time of the accident on Quadra at Caledonia Avenue.

Education Methods Misunderstood

Most parents have a serious misunderstanding about modern education methods thinks Bernard C. Gillie, principal of the new S. J. Willis Junior High School, who Thursday night spoke to the Oak Bay Kiwanis Club.

Comparing education as it was 50 years ago with present-day approaches, he said: "Our education standard will be infinitely better if we accept the fact that our environment has changed."

MYSTERIOUS BREED

Crindle Kern Terrier Gave Scots First Kilt

By BOB HUTCHISON

One of our readers has taken exception to an item which appeared in Wednesday's paper about a dog. She has never heard of a Crindle Kern and she professes to be familiar with every known purebred dog in the world. A map of the various breeds accompanied her well-meaning letter.

What our reader missed was the fact that we never claimed our traveling pup to be a purebred. Her owner, Miss Ann Wurtele, simply said her dog "Jem" was a "Crindle Kern." We would ask her what kind of a dog this is, but unfortunately, she is now in London, Ont.

Searching into the case we find a Kern was a light-armed soldier among the ancient Irish or Scottish Highlanders. Crindle, according to an old source, who claims to know, is an old word of Irish origin, meaning harlequin. Harlequin, says Webster, is a combination of colors, as of certain dogs.

A Crindle Kern is a small dog developed by the ancient Scots during Roman times. It was of many colors. Thus "Crindle" for multi-colored and "Kern" for a Scottish soldier.

FIRST KILTS

The dog was sheared, according to ancient legend, and the much-colored hair was woven into the first kilt.

Some say that Jem is not a true Crindle Kern, since she is of only one color and wears no kilt. They think she is a Cairn, which really means a pile of rocks. A Cairn terrier is a small, compactly built dog, originating in Scotland, employed chiefly to enter rock piles and dislodge vermin.

As for Jem, she has no comment, but it is generally believed that she is a dog of high quality and breeding. Highlander, or pile of rocks, she is alive, well and in London, meeting after her long jaunt, apparently unconcerned about the dispute over her heredity.

GUEST STOLE HOST'S WATCH

Stephen Vargas, about 40, no fixed address, was remanded to Monday for sentence by Magistrate H. C. Hall today in city police court for stealing a $75 watch. Vargas pleaded guilty.

Detective Louis Callan told the court Vargas was one of a group of people entertained by Robert Fielding Minty, visitor, at a party in his hotel room Wednesday night. Minty missed his gold pocket watch the next morning and called police. The detective said Vargas was found trying to raise a loaf on the watch at a local shop.

Ash Urges Better Rural Area Phones

Company Asked For Assurance Pre-Boost Promise Being Kept

An early start is being sought in the extension of the Victoria telephone exchange to take in the country hand-winding telephones of the Albion, Colquitz and Belmont exchanges.

Arthur Ash, M.L.A. for Saanich, has written James Hamilton, vice-president of the B.C. Telephone Co. at Vancouver, asking for assurance that the company intends to proceed with an exchange extension and improvement program in this area as outlined last January.

Since January, says Mr. Ash, the service on the country exchanges here has not improved. "In fact, it has deteriorated, if anything," his letter states.

"The present service rendered by the Albion, Belmont and Colquitz exchanges is deplorable and should be remedied as soon as possible."

Mr. Ash recalls that in January the telephone company announced a planned expansion program to cost $643,600, provided a rate increase was granted by the transport board.

The increase was granted.

"In view of this, and on behalf of the people of my constituency I would appreciate information as to when these improvements may be expected," he writes.

It was his understanding, he said, that the company proposed spending $150,000 on a new building and automatic equipment for the Albion exchange, $127,000 on Belmont exchange, and $212,000 for new automatic equipment for Colquitz exchange.

The Sidney and Keating exchanges were, Mr. Ash understood, in the company's 1951 program of improvement.

Registration was in the name of Mrs. Thomas H. Fletcher, 470 Dupplin Road.

The Co-operative Society of Visually Handicapped, Vancouver, was registered under the Co-operative Act.

Many Find It Hard To Pay Hospital Tax

Paying hospital insurance premiums is working a hardship on some people, especially older citizens, it was claimed in city police court today.

Such was the case of William F. Gurney, 1754 Bay Street. He pleaded guilty to a charge of being delinquent in paying his premiums, but explained he did not have any ready money to pay them.

"The reason is that I've been out of work since last September, with the exception of a few odd days," he told Magistrate H. C. Hall.

Gurney owes $33 and, while he could pay some next week, he said he could not pay it all for about a month. The magistrate remanded his case to Aug. 14.

William J. Griffin, 2522 Victor Street, was fined $5 when he pleaded guilty to not paying on the due date.

James R. Russell, 2522 Forbes Street, entered a similar plea and was given to Aug. 5 to arrange for payment of $48. Gordon E. Kirby, 3127 Quadra Street, after pleading guilty, was given until Monday to arrange to pay $33 he owes. A fine of $5 and an order to pay his $21 arrears, was imposed against John W. Stidston, 644 John Street, when he pleaded guilty.

SHOPPING GUIDE

Buttons By The Dozen
They're Cheaper That Way

By PENNY SAVER

The days have been whizzing by at such a rate recently I hadn't had a moment to phone my dear friend, Mabel, in almost two weeks. Armed with a sack of sandwiches and a glass of milk, I pulled up a stool and made the supreme sacrifice. After passing the usual mundane remarks as to her health, and that of the family, she informed me that she, 'ubby and junior had just returned from a trip to "camp." . . . a small brown cottage with . . . uninvited guests . . . two mice who finally took over the disposal system of left-over food stuffs.

When she first caught Junior engaging in feeding the wee varmints, she thought it rather thoughtful on his part, but one of the rodents must have put up the "free lunch" sign. The rest is history. I mean, how much can you charge a mouse who eats three kernels of cereal and the corner of a Swiss cheese sandwich?

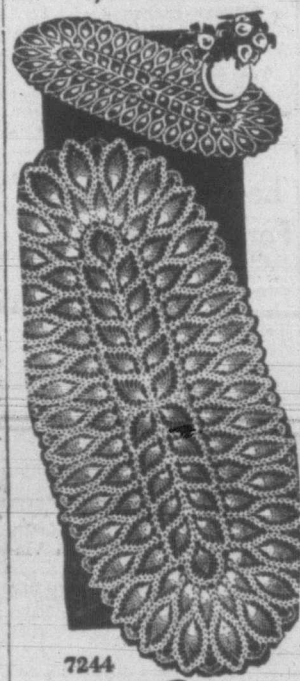

Not more than 40 minutes later . . . when I got to emit my second word in the conversation. . . I told her about a button shop I'd visited that morning. Believe it or not she stopped her steady line of patter to have a listen.

My reason for telling Mabel of this shop stemmed from the fact that she has just finished making herself a cotton frock and was in a bit of doubt as to whether she'd have matching or contrasting buttons. Not much of a problem if you take your material to that shop, where they'll show you a button size chart . . . sizes range from a quarter of an inch to an inch and a half . . . you make a choice and place your order. How easy can it get?

To give you an idea how much all this is going to cost you I'll use the price on a dozen, three-quarter inch buttons. The sum of 60 cents for the buttons and a matching buckle, depending on size, 40 or 50 cents. Hand stitched the buttons run from 15 to 25 cents each.

You'll find every shape and form, from the flat to round . . . like an acorn . . . to the square crystal and oval wooden types. Hand-carved and different to the last word, are the wooden Bud-shas. About an inch and a half long, they sell for $1.50. The intricate work on each button will delight the taste of the artistic. Other wooden buttons, made of Yew, Juniper and Ar-

YOUR BABY AND MINE

By MYRTLE MEYER ELDRED

Adults, in general, are accustomed to the use of either tea or coffee with their meals. But the use of either of these beverages for small children is frowned upon by authorities on diet and with good reason.

Mrs. J. S. writes, "My mother-in-law gave my baby coffee at one year of age. Now, at the age of three he prefers it to his milk. She also gave the child tea."

"I don't approve of this as my boy is on the thin side, anyway. While at a family party my boy wanted coffee with the grown-ups and so the other children wanted it, too. One mother got very angry and let me know she disapproved of giving children coffee. What harm is there in it?"

1. Newton Kugelmass, M.D., in his book, "Superior Children Through Modern Diet," has this to say on the subject:

"Tea and coffee are the least harmful of the habit-forming drugs to which mankind is addicted. It is not amiss to call them drugs because of their content of caffeine. Caffeine produces a feeling of buoyancy without having any after effect of depression. While a boon to adults to sustain strength under conditions of severe strain, there is no need to allow children to form the habit. Yet, these beverages must not be condemned as poisons to be shunned. The stimulus of growth should be enough to keep children in a desirable state of buoyancy. If a stimulus is needed tea and coffee do not constitute the remedy."

It was not the privilege of your mother-in-law to give your child any drink of which you disapproved. I would try to undo the influence of this habit on the child by prescribing only milk until he has his growth.

Our leaflet No. 27, "Diet From Two to Five Years," may be had by sending a stamped, self-addressed envelope to Myrtle Meyer Eldred in care of this newspaper.

25-Inch Waists
Too Thick
For Dior

JOHANNESBURG (CP)—South African models are angry about the forthcoming visit of eight Paris models to the union to display products for the South African Wool Board. They have their sharpened for Christian Dior.

They say that when the display was first proposed Dior intended to use four South African girls and four from Paris.

"Photographs and measurements of six South African Models were sent to him," they say. "He rejected them all, however, saying that their waistlines were 'too thick.'"

The waists of the South African girls averaged 25 inches; those of the French models 20 inches.

At a similar display in Australia recently Dior used four Australian and four French models. He went personally to Australia and when he found the Australians not slim enough he made them reduce to fit his requirements.

TODAY'S RECIPE

DEVILED HAM-
RICE FRITTERS

There 2 1/2-oz. cans deviled ham, 2 eggs, little milk, 1 cup cooked cold rice, 1 cup flour, 1 teaspoon baking powder.

Preparing rice:

Put one cup of white rice, one teaspoon salt and two cups cold water in a two-quart saucepan. Cover with a tight-fitting lid. Set over a hot flame until it boils vigorously. Then reduce the heat as low as possible and simmer for 14 minutes more. During this time the rice will absorb the water and come out deliciously tender. Remove the lid to permit the rice to steam dry. Lift rice with a fork to test its consistency. Never stir rice while cooking—and the grains will be separate and tender. Makes approximately three cups fluffy white rice. Keep leftover cooked rice in a covered bowl in refrigerator—you'll find it handy next time you're in a hurry to fix a quick meal.

Note:

This produces very firm rice grains. If you prefer more tender grains, use 1/2 cup additional water for each cup of rice used, and increase your slow cooking period four or five minutes.

Method:

Blend the deviled ham, cooked rice, eggs (beaten lightly with a fork), flour and baking powder sifted together, and enough milk to make the batter of proper consistency to be dropped from a spoon. Fry in hot shortening. Serve at once. This will make enough fritters for six.

London Fashions Fancy
Togs For Mothers-To-Be

LONDON (CP)—Britain is getting away from old ideas and producing colorful, fashionable clothes for the would-be mother.

Many large stores have opened special departments for maternity styles and some houses undertake to refashion the clothes after the birth.

One Bayswater shop (Holler) has its own designers turning out styles with a Parisian flair.

An example is a blue wool tunic of hip length, with shoulder wide cape collar of white silk and big, elbow-length bell sleeves edged with white. The wide, straight tunic has a white belt and a back which falls in fashionable swing panels.

Some of the tunics are a little fantastic but there are simple shirt-waisted blouse-jackets with open neck and bishop sleeves.

Many designs have medieval or renaissance interest. For instance there is one with the huge sleeves of a renaissance dandy and wide, graceful regency cloaks with big collars and wide sleeves.

In cotton dresses, one style has the simplicity of a choir-boy's surplice. A white cotton with broderie anglaise collar costs less than £5 ($9.30).

Chinese coolie jackets are another popular choice for maternity wear, as are the huge, white quaker collars, wide swager and kigger coats and buttoned skirts.

A store which specializes in hand-smocking has "kangaroo" skirts for wear beneath their smocks. These hang from braces and have a circular cut-out at the waist.

Maternity underwear is more expensive and hard to find. Many corset-makers ignore this line and some women complain they must have maternity corsets especially made.

Boyish Bob, Manly Clothes
Out For Fall, Say Stylists

NEW YORK (AP)—Girls will be girls again this fall.

The last hint of the flat-chested silhouette, the boyish bob and the flapper slouch has been removed firmly from the fall fashion picture. The designers vote unanimously for feminine curves.

Fall fashion previews will accentuate the positive, eliminate the negative.

The prevailing daytime silhouette for fall will be slim but svelte, with sharply nipped waistline and accented curves above and below. Padded hips are apparent in many of the new fall suits, and skillful draping dramatizes the bustline.

Skirts are almost uniformly slim and straight, slit for walking comfort and cut on peg-top lines. Their length is about the same as current styles or slightly shorter—14 to 16 inches from the floor, depending on the height of the wearer. Designers seem agreed that the most flattering skirt length is mid-calf.

Last season's abortive effort to bring back the unflattering sack silhouette of the 1920's has been killed indefinitely and finally by the roar of protest that went up from Mr. and Mrs. General Public.

Most dramatic news in the fall fashion lineup is in fabrics.

Mr. and Mrs. R. V. Walsh with Derek and Daphne
Exchange Prairie Home For Coast

"Victoria truly is a city of gardens," exclaim Mr. and Mrs. Ronald V. Walsh as they stroll through the gardens of Empress Hotel with their youngsters, Daphne aged six, and three-year-old Derek.

The young family arrived recently from Norwood, Winnipeg, and are making their home at "Rockhome," Quadra Street.

"We chose this city because Mr. Walsh has always been interested in gardening, and now wants to make that his occupation," Mrs. Walsh explains, and adds that this is her first trip to the coast and that even though she has been here only a short while she "never wants to live anywhere else."

While her husband spent his spare moments as an active member of the horticultural association in Winnipeg, Mrs. Walsh took up handicrafts as her hobby. Her attractive shoulder bag is an example of her skill.

Vancouver Newlyweds On Wedding Trip Up-Island; Leave For East In Fall

Victoria shares interest with the mainland in the marriage in Our Lady of Perpetual Help Church, Vancouver, uniting James Frederick Bernard Beesley and Loretta Marguerite Byrnes, last Saturday.

The couple left on a motor trip to Cameron Lake, V.I., and will spend the summer in Vancouver.

Later they will leave for Montreal where the groom is studying ing medicine at McGill University.

The bride and groom were graduated in arts from University of British Columbia where they were active in the Newman Club.

The groom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John J. Beesley of this city, crossed to the mainland for the rites performed by Rev. John M. Burns, childhood friend of the bride.

The only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Joseph Byrnes wore a princess style white tulle taffeta gown en train.

The nylon yoke was enhanced by fagoting at the neckline and shoulders. The peplum was made from lace from the bride's mother's wedding gown and the heirloom veil of matching Limerick lace, embroidered with lilies of the valley, had been worn by the bride's mother on her wedding day. The bride wore pearls, gift of the groom, and carried a prayer book used by her mother and grandmother on their wedding days. It was adorned with a spray of red roses and lilies of the valley.

Matron of honor, Mrs. J. W. Munro, and bridesmatron, Mrs. J. Malo, wore turquoise tulle taffeta gowns.

Miss Betty Beesley, sister of the groom from Victoria, wore turquoise tulle taffeta with overskirt and fitted bodice of matching net.

J. Alan Beesley came from Victoria to be his brother's groomsmen. Ushers were Jim Munro, Joe Malo and Bill O'Brien.

Toast to the bride at a reception in Brock Hall was proposed by H. R. Lonsdale.

Miss Ellen Ingram has returned to California after a two-week holiday at Salt Spring Island where she was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Scott Clarke at Ganges.

Barnaby and Nicholas Guthrie of Victoria are holidaying on Salt Spring Island for two weeks, where they are guests of their grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Acland at "Aclands," Vesuvius.

Miss Dorothy Mickelborough, of Ottawa, assistant superintendent of the Victorian Order of Nurses for Canada, has arrived on Salt Spring Island, where she is spending a two-week holiday visiting her sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. R. T. Meyer at Vesuvius Bay.

To honor Dr. A. Francis on the occasion of his birthday, a no-host party was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. Monk on Oak Leaf Island in Ganges Harbor. The doctor's cabin cruiser "Arandee" transported the guests from Ganges Wharf on Salt Spring. Invited guests were: Mr. and Mrs. S. Donkersley, Mr. and Mrs. L. R. Snow, Mr. and Mrs. S. V. Henn, Mr. and Mrs. C. Whitehead, Mr. and Mrs. H. Day, Mr. and Mrs. K. Peter, Mr. and Mrs. H. McLeod, Mr. and Mrs. T. Bradley and Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Brown.

Mrs. J. C. Lee and Mrs. L. J. Mollet were co-hostesses recently

Social Afternoon—The gardens of the home of Mrs. B. Macro, Ruby Road, provided the setting for a social afternoon held by Victoria Women's Institute. A strawberry tea was served buffet style and those assisting were: Mrs. F. Bridge, Mrs. E. Thomas, Mrs. N. Brown and the Misses Diane Roskelley and Sylvia Divison. Mrs. Macro poured tea and Mrs. C. Johns was in receipt of customs.

'GUITAR LOOK' FASHION FAD

NEW YORK (AP)—Next fall it will be the "guitar look."

So says Christian Dior, Parisian designer who invented another look called the "new look" a few years ago, and has been trying to live it down ever since.

Both bosoms and hips are accentuated, in the current Dior collection, with waistlines squeezed into as small a circumference as possible. Hiplines once more are padded and bodices are cut with curving finesse. Skirts, of course, are pencil slim, like the handle of the guitar, but are deeply slit both front and back in order to make it possible for the wearer to walk.

THE STORY: Just as John Sand, M.D., makes his first appearance in Wolf Point, Mont., there's a shooting at a saloon and a cowboy named Dusty kills a gambler. The cowboy takes Sand to a white-washed log cabin, which he says is the doctor's to open an office. Just as the doctor finishes dressing Dusty's wounded arm, there is a knock on the door. Dusty orders Sand to hide under a bunk and with a drawn pistol, the cowboy opens the door. "Don't shoot!" comes a voice and a small, slim woman in a yellow saddle slicker enters the cabin.

CHAPTER 3

Dusty, the cowpuncher, closed the door and slid the wooden bar into place after the small woman had entered. She walked over to the table and turned up the lamp.

Freckles sprinkled her short nose and cheeks. When she pulled off the man's hat she was wearing, her hair was the color of burnished copper. She shed the yellow slicker and she had on a gingham-checked dress. Her grey eyes were dark-shadowed as she stared at the cowpuncher's bandaged arm.

The woman and the cowpuncher stood facing each other. "Why?" Her voice was tense. "Why?" she asked again.

REASON ENOUGH

"He was cold-deckin' me," the cowman's voice went back to its soft drawl. "That's reason enough, Kit." Before she could say anything else, he motioned with his gun toward Doc under the bunk. "You can come out now, Doc," he said, and then added to Kit: "We ain't alone."

John Sand felt foolish as he crawled out from under the bunk and brushed the dust off his clothing.

"This is Kit Carson, Doc," the cowboy was explaining. "She's named after the famous trapper." Then he turned to Kit. "Doc's just starting business here."

The girl held out her hand and it felt cold as ice to Doc as he took it. "I'm John Sand," he managed a smile. He felt the impact of her steady grey eyes that had the color of smoke with the warmth of a hidden fire beneath.

Dusty pulled back a bed tarp and was digging into a canvas warsack. He turned his back on them while he pulled on an undershirt and a clear blue flannel shirt and tucked in the short tails with one hand. He reached for his hat and pulled it down across his thick, wiry, black hair. He put on a saddle slicker.

"I reckon I'd better pull out," he grinned flatly. "I want you two to be good friends. Kit'll see to it that you don't starve to death, Doc. She owns the hotel and the dinin' room."

FIRST OFFICE

He explained to Kit: "I told Doc to get rid of all this clutter and use the Whitehouse for his office. There's a shed out back where he can put the litter. It'll make Doc a good office till he can move into somethin' more stylish." He held out his hand towards the girl, who took it and went with him to the door.

John Sand turned his back on them and rolled down his shirt sleeves and buttoned his cuffs. He got very busy putting things back in the black bag, whistling tunelessly between his teeth until he heard the man's voice lifted above the low tone he was using in talking to the girl over by the door.

"You can turn around now, Doc. Quit whistling that hungry tune. I'm sure obliged for what you done and I'll pay my bill the next time I get to town." He grinned faintly. "Turn the lamp down a little till I get out the door."

The girl closed the door after Dusty. She hesitated a long moment and then slid the bar in place. John Sand turned the lampwick higher.

They stood facing one another in awkward silence.

"Just got off the train," he said lamely. "It was a wild-west reception for a newcomer. I've seen wounded and dead men, but this is the first shooting I ever witnessed. I guess it was Wolf Point's initiation of a tenderfoot."

He realized he had said the wrong thing in his embarrassed effort to make conversation. Kit sat down in a chair and put her hands to her face and a rasping sob tore itself from her tight-aching throat and then the tears came.

John Sand had training and common sense enough to leave her alone until she had cried herself out. He took a clean folded handkerchief from his coat pocket and handed it to her.

"I haven't bawled like this since I was a kid in pigstails," she smiled faintly. "And in front of a stranger at that." She looked up at him.

"Somehow," she said slowly, "I don't seem to mind it a bit. You must be a good doctor, John Sand."

"Hardly. I'm a green hand, fresh out of medical school. I had a year to go to finish my internship—when something happened."

"I saved out a hundred dollars and laid what was left of my roll on the counter and told the ticket agent to figure out how far west it would take me. His pencil stopped at a dot on the railway map. The dot marked Wolf Point, Montana."

"Dusty Rhodes was your first patient, then?" she asked.

"Here at Wolf Point. I delivered a baby on the train." His smile lost its bitter twist and the warmth came back into his brown eyes.

ALCOHOL STUDY

Canadian To Attend Yale School

NEW YORK (CP)—More than 20 Canadians will take part this year in Yale University's Summer School of Alcohol Studies, a four-week course designed to make the most recent findings of scientific research available for application to the problems of alcohol in the community.

Three of them—Miss D. V. Mullan of Toronto; Evelyn B. Moulton, Kingston, Ont.; and Muriel Milligan, Hamilton, Ont.—are attending under a scholarship plan sponsored by the Provincial Council of Women of Ontario.

This is the school's eighth annual session. A prospectus says that "the educational program of lectures and workshops is designed for the needs of men and women engaged in professions or activities in which a thorough knowledge of the facts about alcohol problems will be of particular usefulness."

Elected Pi Phi President In Jasper

The noted educator and leader of women has headed this great 50,000-member fraternity since 1921, during which she has traveled extensively throughout the continent. Pi Beta Phi, founded in 1867, is the oldest national organization for college women. It now boasts 97 chapters and 245 alumnae clubs. Five chapters are in Canada. (C.N.R. Photo)

Seek Older Women As Baby Sitters, Economists Urge

MONTREAL (CP)—The Canadian Home Economics Association, which has been studying the baby-sitting situation across Canada, today called for less sitting time and more training for the teen-agers who look after children.

The association, holding its annual convention here, also told parents to seek older women sitters through community organizations, leave written instructions with sitters and don't let girl sitters go home alone after dark.

The Association based its recommendations on results of questionnaires sent parents in 60 cities and to 6,000 students in grades five to 13 in nine provinces.

Some of the facts the association gleaned:

1. The age range of sitters is 11 to 19 years.
2. Students spend one to 40 hours weekly sitting.
3. From 22 to 50 per cent of girl sitters are allowed to go home after dark.
4. Only one-third of parents leave instructions with the sitters.
5. An average of 40 per cent leave only a telephone number.
6. Some parents turn off the heat and the house gets cold.

DOROTHY DIX

Dear Miss Dix: I have been going steady with a young man and we get along very well together except for one thing which I am afraid will break up our friendship, which I value very highly, and that is my lack of conversation. I talk very little. I am intelligent, well educated and a great reader, but I enjoy listening in preference to talking. This silence on my part is a bone of contention between us. He feels that I am too introspective and that I not only do not talk enough but that I am so shut up in myself that I drive people away from me. Is reticence on a person's part an asset or a liability, or just unnatural?

Answer: It is all three, according to the way you look at it. Certainly the woman who talks little is kept from saying many foolish things, and if she never discusses her private affairs she saves herself from much bitter repentance, and so far reticence is an asset.

There is a lot to be said in favor of lending your ears instead of giving your tongue. Good listeners are such a rarity in a world filled with monologists that it appears to me your boy friend does not appreciate the blessing he has in you. Personally, I can think of nothing so delightful as having a companion who would let me do all the talking without ever desiring to retaliate.

However, the truth is that most men are conversationally lazy. They don't want to have to make any effort to entertain a woman. They don't want to have to bother to think up subjects to talk about. And so they pick out a girl who can babble on, like the brook, forever and forever.

Dear Miss Dix: My sister is 20 years old and lost most of her front teeth in an accident. She is a very pretty girl, but she is so unhappy about having false teeth that she has become morbid and refuses to go out to parties and dances. In reality she is just as lovely as ever.

Answer: Tell your sister to brace up and take it on the chin. These days false teeth are made so artistically that they are often a great improvement upon the ones which Nature bestowed upon one. I know many people who are far better-looking with their perfect store teeth than they were with their own misshapen and off-colored ones.

A girl should have more courage than to let herself be downed by a little physical affliction.

New Zealand Hubbies Go For 'Fathercraft' Class

AUCKLAND, N.Z. (CP)—New Zealand's Plunket Society, which has long given courses in mothercraft for prospective mothers, has now started courses in fathercraft for fathers-to-be.

New Zealand has the lowest infant mortality rate in the world and much of the credit is officially given to the Plunket Society, its work for the care of infants and its pre-natal and post-natal guidance to a large proportion of all the mothers in the country, have made it known throughout the world. Its principles have been widely adopted in many countries.

But fathercraft is a new departure. It started when a young naval officer became so interested in the instruction being given to his wife before their baby came that he asked if he could go along to the lectures too. Other fathers showed an equal interest and eventually Sister Nancy Clayton, who was conducting the course of lessons, decided to hold a class at the end of each session for mothers-to-be for the husbands of those attending.

A further step came when a father who had attended a course consented to act as demonstrator. What is more he brought his own baby along to demonstrate on, though he modestly informed the prospective fathers that neither he nor his son had "any technical proficiency." He said he had come along because he wanted to show other young men what fun it could be to bathe one's own baby.

The lectures include instruction on clothing for babies, preparation of food, handling of babies and other information on subjects with which young fathers are likely to be called upon to cope.

Deviled Eggs

Luncheon Treat

For an easy and delicious luncheon or supper entree, hot deviled eggs will fill the bill to a T. Rich ripe olives and cheese are added to the hot white sauce poured over the stuffed egg halves before they are heated.

HOT DEVILED EGGS

Half cup ripe olives, 4 tablespoons butter or margarine, 4 tablespoons flour, ¼ teaspoon dry mustard, ¼ teaspoon paprika, ¼ teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon Worcestershire sauce, 2 cups milk, bit of bay leaf, 6 hard-cooked eggs, ¼ cup grated Parmesan cheese.

Cut olives from pits into large pieces. Melt butter and blend in flour, mustard, paprika, salt and Worcestershire sauce. Add milk and bay leaf and cook and stir until thickened. Remove bay leaf. Cut eggs into halves lengthwise and remove yolks. Mash yolks and blend with a little sauce. Season to taste. Heap into whites and arrange in shallow baking dish. Stir olives and half of cheese into remaining sauce and pour over and around eggs. Top with remaining cheese. Bake in moderate oven (350 degrees F.) 15 to 20 minutes, until thoroughly heated. Serves four.

Treat St. Vitus Dance With Diet, Long Rest

By EDWIN P. JORDAN, M. D.

Chorea, or St. Vitus dance, is a curious condition about which much still has to be learned. It seems to be related to rheumatic fever. A family tendency to the disease is fairly common. Unusually bright children and those with a "highly strung" nervous system appear to be particularly susceptible.

The disease is somewhat more common in girls than in boys and affects principally those between five and 15 years of age. Some children with early signs of chorea do not appear to be ill but merely more awkward than usual. They are often scolded by their parents or teachers for dropping things and showing other signs of poor muscular control without realizing that it is illness and not intention which is responsible.

MILD CHOREA

In mild chorea the general health is good, the muscles twitch only slightly and the speech and mental functions are not disturbed. Children with mild chorea frequently complain of fatigue.

Emotional disturbances, such as easy crying and nightmares, are often present. When the hands are held straight out in front with the fingers spread, the jerky irregular movements of the muscles are characteristic and can be easily recognized by the experienced physician.

In the severe form of the disease the movements involve a lot of muscles and the youngster may not even be able to feed or undress themselves without help. Sometimes the speech is affected and a child may not be able to talk at all for several days.

The worst type of chorea is the maniacal form which is, fortunately, very rare. Here, in addition to the muscular movements, there are severe mental symptoms which may last for weeks.

VIOLENT ATTACKS

The muscles are weakened. The heart is sometimes involved but often escapes undamaged. Irritability and emotional outbreaks are common. An attack lasts on the average from eight to 10 weeks and most patients recover.

Diagnosis is not difficult as a rule if the possibility of chorea is considered. It is important to try to tell whether the chorea is of the kind associated with rheumatic fever or not.

Diet and long bed rest, similar to that which is given for rheumatic fever are the treatments of chorea. Because chorea involves the nervous system, sedatives for the nerves are usually necessary in addition. The cause is still unknown.

Auto Club Ready To Recommend Automatic Signs

The Victoria Automobile Club, which for the past two months has been gathering information on the use of automatic signaling devices, is now prepared to go before provincial government authorities and ask that mechanical signals be made lawful in B.C.

Ald. Frank Mulliner, president of the club, reports standard types of mechanical signals are already recognized in Ontario and in some parts of the United States.

"As the province has now a great many British cars which are equipped with this device, it is the club's contention that it is only fair they should be made as legal as arm signals," Ald. Mulliner said.

At present, the province's Motor Vehicle Act recognizes as lawful only signals made by the arm and hand.
